Pay curbs plan abandoned

London (UPI) — The government Thursday abandoned its plans to impose a third year of pay curbs and appealed to labor unions to use "common sense" in demanding wage increases.

A two-hour cabinet meeting presided over by Prime Minister James Callaghan decided there is no hope of winning union support for a third year of pay curbs and ended its so-called "social contract" under which it tried to stop inflation.

Gold auction invitations sent

Washington (AP) — Invitations to bid on the International Monetary Fund's next gold auction, Aug. 3, were sent out Thursday.

The income from the sale of 525,000 ounces will go into the trust fund.

The minimum bid will be 1,200 ounces and the common price method will be used in which all successful bidders will be awarded gold at the lowest accepted price. The gold will be delivered in London.

Coal mine explosion kills 80

Medellin, Colombia (UPI) — An explosion in a coal mine in the Colombian town of Amaga early Thursday killed "at least 80" workers, authorities reported.

Many of the workers in the mine 120 miles south of Medellin died of asphyxiation, the authorities said.

Natural gas bid rejected

Washington (AP) — The House Commerce Committee Thursday rejected another bid to end government regulation of natural gas prices, thus giving President Carter a second cliff-hanging victory on the issue.

The panel voted 23-20 to reject a compromise tailored as a substitute for Carter's plan for continued federal control of the fuel price.

The committee had voted 22-21 earlier this year to reject another deregulation package.

Acreage reduction predicted

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — America's wheat farmers should expect an acreage reduction program this fall in which they will not be compensated for the land they set aside, a top Agriculture Department official indicated Thursday.

Robert H. Meyer, an assistant secretary of agriculture, told the Kansas Cattle Feeders Conference that a setaside is the "principal" option available to counter a huge surplus of wheat.

Goals' achievability doubted

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Washington — It is doubtful that President Carter can achieve his employment, inflation and balanced budget goals by 1981. And if he insists on striving to reach all of them, he may not attain a single one.

That's the rather skeptical conclusion of the latest budget analysis by scholars at the Brookings Institution, a Democratic-oriented think tank here.

The authors of "Setting National Priorities: The 1978 Budget" say it is theoretically possible to balance the budget, reduce unemployment to 5% and cut the inflation rate to 4% — as Carter has pledged. But these goals would be difficult enough to achieve individually and the likelihood of attaining them all at once is remote, they say.

If Carter is to be successful, he probably will have to choose among these objectives. The economists said in their report that they would discard a balanced budget, which they fear might get in the way of a return to full employment, their top priority.

On the economic outlook, the economists are most pessimistic about inflation, saying the underlying 6% rate is likely to persist for a while. "Inflation may not drop to 5% by fiscal year 1981, much less to 4% as the new administration hopes," writes report editor Joseph A. Pechman, director of research at Brookings.

The report is highly critical of the anti-inflation program unveiled by Carter this spring. "There is little really new in his program," says economist Joseph J. Minarik,

"which suggests that progress in the future may be no greater than it has been in the past."

Permeating much of the report is concern over the trade-off between 5% unemployment and balancing the budget. The authors see little hope of doing both.

"Achieving an unemployment rate under 5% while tightening fiscal policy requires much more vigorous real growth in private investment than has occurred," Pechman says.

He also warns that overzealousness in pursuit of a balanced budget could cause the economy to falter and "none of the Carter administration's long-run goals will be realized."

Economist Robert W. Hartman says it will take a steady stream of the best of luck for Carter to balance the budget anyway. Under the most favorable of circumstances — specifically, less than 5% expenditures by $51 billion in fiscal 1981. However, that assumes a "dramatic cutback" in spending growth from the average 10% of recent years to 2.5% annually through 1981.

Even with the $51 billion surplus, Hartman doubts there would be enough "budgetary elbow room" for Carter to keep all his campaign promises, although he says many social goals can be met. Hartman assumes that $30 billion of the surplus would go for spending programs and $20 billion for tax cuts.

Hartman also is skeptical of zero-based budgeting. He complains that zero-based budgeting wastes managerial resources and diverts attention from long-range projects because of its "myopic bias."

Gasohol views clash

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska farmers told state senators Thursday they favor the construction of grain alcohol plants because it would offer farmers another needed market for their corn, wheat and milo.

Whether the grain alcohol is sold to industry or blended with gasoline to fuel cars, the time has come "to either fish or cut bait," Dr. William Scheller said.

Dr. Scheller, head of the chemical engineering department at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is a technical adviser to the Gasohol Committee which was created to study the production of the fuel. Gasohol is a blend of 90% gasoline and 10% ethanol or grain alcohol.

The Legislature's Agriculture and Environment Committee heard conflicting testimony from UNL economics professor Dr. James Kendrick who cited numerous studies conducted on gasohol.

"The literature seems to be uniform," Dr. Kendrick concluded. "Ethanol production from grain as a fuel is uneconomical."

His testimony ran close to an hour while he cited technical data on topics ranging from the starch content of corn to comparative costs of fuels.

At one point State Sen. George Burrows of Adams swiveled around in his chair, grimaced at reporters and threw up his hands in apparent bafflement at some of the professor's testimony.

Because of the high price of ethanol, Dr. Kendrick said it is unlikely that ethanol will be used extensively as a fuel source.

"You can have gasohol in this state tomorrow," he said, "But you have to determine if the benefits outweigh the costs."

Dr. Scheller and members of the Gasohol Committee strongly disagreed with Dr. Kendrick's testimony, contending his studies assumed higher energy costs for alcohol production than necessary.

Dr. Scheller also is president of a private company which hopes to build Nebraska's first grain alcohol plant. The plant would sell its product to industry and not produce gasohol. He said he strongly favors the production of gasohol and feels no additional studies are needed.

He was referring to comments submitted in writing by Gov. J. James Exon who urged the committee to conduct a marketing study.

The studies are not needed, Gasohol Committee member Jack Quackenbush of Beatrice said, because:

—The committee is completing a two million-mile road test which should prove the feasibility of using gasohol.

—A consumer acceptance test conducted in Holdrege proved the public would buy gasohol.

—A preliminary economic study by an independent engineering firm showed justification for a plant.

Gasohol Committee member Holly Hodge said Exon has indicated he would not reappoint three members to the committee if they refused to authorize another study.

"I'm interested in doing studies that will enhance the program," Hodge said, adding, "I'm not very interested in doing studies which will attempt to prove it won't work."

Hodge said he thinks the Gasohol Committee, formally called the Agriculture Products Industrial Utilization Committee, will reject the governor's recommendation when they meet Friday in Grand Island.

State Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood, chairman of the legislative committee, said he would be unhappy if Exon kicked any people off the Gasohol Committee for refusing to authorize another study.

Wildlife ritual impedes dam

Editor's Note: This is the last of five articles by a Star staff writer who recently visited the Wyoming site of a power plant that will provide part of Lincoln's electricity beginning in 1980.

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

Every year a celebrated ritual occurs when thousands of sandhills cranes congregate on the middle Platte for a month or so of rest, feeding and courtship before resuming their migration north.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service wants to preserve the wildlife spectacle and that's why it has filed an objection to the proposed Grayrocks Reservoir of the Missouri Basin Power Project.

Decreases in the flow of water in the Platte River jeopardize the habitat of the sandhills crane and the power plant would completely use up an amount of water 50% larger than Branched Oak Lake to produce 1.5 megawatts of electricity, 13.3% of which will go to the Lincoln Electric System.

Despite its concern, the Fish and Wildlife Service is prepared to negotiate a settlement with power project officials, rather than fighting a battle in court. The move may signal the eventual outcome of all opposition to the reservoir.

John VanDerwalker of the Fish and Wildlife Service explained the reason for the agency's approach:

"We couldn't demonstrate that by itself the plant would have the impact of taking enough water to eliminate the habitat," he said.

In combination with other projects that would take water from the Platte, such as reservoirs for irrigation, the Grayrocks Reservoir would be contributing to a cumulative impact that would destroy the cranes habitat — large, shallow expanses of water, VanDerwalker said.

"But some of those other projects are not as far along as some people would like to believe," he said, and agency officials did not think they could make a convincing argument that a cumulative effect is a certainty.

As an alternative, the agency is trying to convince power project officials to guarantee a minimum amount of yearly flow from the reservoir.

Participants in the negotiations, which include Wyoming state officials, federal officials and power project officials, are reluctant to talk about details of the impending agreement until it is signed. But all say agreement is near.

The other obstacle blocking work on the dam — the lawsuit by the State of Nebraska which has been joined by the National Wildlife Federation and the National Audubon Society — is also the focus of steady negotiations, according to Steve Smith of the Nebraska attorney general's office.

Sessions are being held about twice a month, said Smith, who returned this week from a three-day trip to study water uses along the Platte and to visit the proposed site of the reservoir.

"We're still somewhat optimistic that we can settle the lawsuit, but nothing has changed in the last couple of months," Smith said.

In the meantime, the lawsuit is still set for trial in October, 1978. Power project officials say they need to begin work by April, 1978, in order to complete the dam for the plant to begin producing electricity in 1980 as scheduled.

Even if the State of Nebraska reaches a satisfactory settlement and drops out of the lawsuit, the National Federation of Wildlife and the Audubon Society may stick with the case.

Protecting the Platte wildlife habitat is one of the highest priorities of the Audubon Society, according to James Haggart, an Omaha attorney for the society.

An important concern to the society is that the Platte continue to have spring flooding to scour vegetation from the river bottom, in order to provide the "mile wide and an inch deep" characteristic of the Platte, a habitat needed by the sandhills crane and other waterfowl.

Any agreement reached by the state which does not preserve the spring flooding, Haggart said, will not satisfy the Audubon Society and it will pursue the lawsuit.

So although steel of the power plant is already looming over the Wyoming landscape, the future of the $1.4 billion power project remains uncertain.

Wife asks President's help in ending real life spy story

Washington (AP) — The wife of a Russian defector-turned-American double agent appealed to President Carter Thursday to end a real life spy story by interceding with the Russians, who she believes kidnaped her husband 18 months ago.

State Department sources confirmed reports that Nicholas Shadrin was acting as a double agent for the FBI when he disappeared in Vienna, Austria, on Dec. 20, 1975, after going to meet two agents of the Soviet secret police.

The State Department's official spokesman, Hodding Carter, refused to confirm the reports or discuss the department's efforts to find Shadrin. But he acknowledged the department was trying to locate him.

"We want him back because he is an American citizen who has been missing and whose welfare concerns us," said Carter, adding, "We are continuing what have been our efforts to try to both discover where he is and to get him back safely to his wife and to this country."

The White House said Shadrin's wife, Blanka, "has our sympathy and active support," and promised to "continue our best efforts" to secure information about her missing husband. But spokesman Jody Powell refused to discuss the case further.

But Mrs. Shadrin's lawyer, Richard Copaken, disclosed that two secretaries of state had spoken with Soviet officials about Shadrin, and former President Gerald R. Ford himself wrote to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev — all to no avail.

Mrs. Shadrin, a native of Poland who defected with her husband in 1959, appeared on ABC-TV Thursday and said, "I vividly remember President Carter's inaugural speech that our commitment to human rights is absolute and I beg President Carter to get my husband back."

Her lawyer charged that both the Ford and Carter administrations have made "serious blunders and missed opportunities" in the case.

Shadrin was employed as a Soviet naval analyst for the Defense Intelligence Agency, the intelligence-gathering arm of the Pentagon. He became an American citizen by a special act of Congress in 1965.

Mrs. Shadrin said her husband did not tell her until shortly before his disappearance that he had been working for years as an unpaid double agent for his adopted country.

Copaken said he disclosed Shadrin's disappearance to the media as an "act of desperation" after spending months trying to secure his release.

Although Shadrin's disappearance was known within the U.S. intelligence community, details had not been made public previously. Neighbors of the Shadrins in McLean, Va., who knew that he worked for the DIA, were simply told he was out of the country on assignment.

Although no one has heard from Shadrin since his disappearance, Copaken said he has been given indications that the double agent is alive, in a Soviet military prison, and is available for a trade of captured spies.

The State Department spokesman, Carter, said U.S. officials are uncertain where Shadrin is or whether he is alive.

Copaken said Russian agents approached Shadrin in Washington in 1966 and asked him to become a spy. He notified the FBI and at the FBI's request became a double agent, pretending to cooperate with the KGB agents while actually feeding them false information, according to Copaken.

When the Soviets asked Shadrin to meet with them in Vienna, the CIA opposed the mission, fearing that Shadrin could be a target for kidnapping since Vienna is close to the Czechoslovakian border. Shadrin believed he was under a death sentence in Russia, according to Copaken.

Despite the danger, Shadrin was not kept under surveillance while meeting with the KGB agents outside a church in the Austrian capital. The CIA wanted to have him shadowed, but the FBI was worried that the KGB agents would spot the surveillance and realize Shadrin was a U.S. agent.

A CIA agent was supposed to be in charge of the operation, but when Mrs. Shadrin became alarmed and attempted to call him, she found he was at a party outside Vienna.

Tensions raised by 'copter downing

Panmunjom, Korea (AP) — The shooting down of a U.S. Army helicopter by North Korean gunners, with three Americans reported killed and one captured, raised tensions along the old battlefield Thursday.

The United States sought an urgent meeting to discuss the incident but the two sides were unable to agree immediately on a time.

The U.S.-led United Nations Command in Seoul said the CH47 Chinook helicopter "strayed accidentally" into Communist territory and called on North Korea to convene a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission to discuss the "regrettable" incident.

President Carter said in Washington that the helicopter had been over North Korean territory by mistake and "our primary interest is in having the incident not escalate into a confrontation."

"We understand that two of the crew members were killed when the helicopter crashed. Another was killed in the exchange of gunfire in some way we don't know yet. And the fourth one apparently has been captured," Carter said.

A White House spokesman later said there was no exchange of gunfire in the sense American or South Korean soldiers fired at North Koreans.

U.S. Rear Adm. Warren C. Hamm

Jr., senior commission member on the U.N. side, sent a message to North Korean authorities asking that the crew and helicopter be returned.

The North Koreans, who claimed the copter "illegally intruded" on its territory, failed to show up at the truce site at hours twice requested by the U.N. Command. The U.N. side then called for a meeting Friday afternoon while North Korea proposed it be held Saturday.

North Korean radio claimed the "armed" helicopter "infiltrated deep into the portion of our side" and "was brought down . . . by the gunfire of the Korean People's Army."

U.S. officials denied the helicopter was armed and said it went down in view of two U.N. observer posts on the south side of the two-mile-wide buffer zone.

The downing of the U.S. Army helicopter was the fifth such incident involving U.S. military aircraft during the 24-year-old armistice that ended the three-year Korean War in 1953. More than 2,000 shooting incidents have occurred during the uneasy peace and nearly 50 Americans and more than 450 South Koreans have been killed.

Pentagon officials in Washington said U.S. forces were on "normal alert status."

After ax-wielding North Koreans killed two American officers last August in a dispute over the pruning of a tree in Panmunjom, the United States put its forces on alert, bolstered air power and sent the aircraft carrier Midway with five escort ships to patrol Korean waters.

Tensions subsided after Washington agreed to North Korea's proposal to divide the truce village with a line of demarcation.

Thursday's downing of the helicopter seemed bound to trigger fresh debate on Carter's plans to withdraw all 33,000 ground troops remaining in Korea over the next four to five years.

The chairman of Joint Chiefs of Staff told a U.S. House panel in Washington that the incident has not changed the military leadership's support for Carter's plan. "We have not re-evaluated the proposed withdrawal," Gen. George S. Brown said.

The copter, used to carry either troops or cargo, took off from a military base at Pyongyang, about 40 miles south of Seoul on the Korean west coast. It was headed for a point two miles south of the DMZ where it was to pick up construction material and haul it to a U.N. observation post being built in the mountains south of the DMZ, U.S. officials said.

The Chinook was shot down in or near the Nam Gang River not far from the coast and within view of South Korean troops, officials in Washington said. U.S. officials denied the craft was armed and said it had not picked up its cargo.

"The CH47 mission was to ferry construction materials in the vicinity of the east coast, south of the DMZ," Hamm said. "For reasons not yet determined, the helicopter missed its intended landing site and mistakenly headed in a northern direction."

President Carter described the helicopter's flight as routine and said it was traveling in daylight. He said the craft may have lost its navigational fix.

Carter told senators visiting the White House that the North Koreans fired at the copter as it crossed the DMZ and the crew landed on the north side, inspected the craft and then took off as the North Koreans approached, he said.

Two U.S. aircraft were shot down in 1969, the last aircraft downed until Thursday. A U.S. reconnaissance plane with 31 crewmen aboard was shot down over the Sea of Japan in April of that year with no survivors. In August 1969, a helicopter was shot down just north of the DMZ and three crewmen were captured.

Prop plane touted as tank killer

Washington (UPI) — For six years newspaper publisher and aircraft designer David B. Lindsay Jr. has been trying to persuade the military to look at an idea which he says will save the country money and provide it with the best way to fight Soviet tanks.

It is the Enforcer close support aircraft, which now exists as a prototype using parts from various other aircraft and a turboprop jet engine to turn its single propeller.

This year, Lindsay has succeeded in getting the Senate Appropriations Committee to include $3.9 million in its defense funding bill for the Navy to start a test program next year with four of his planes.

Lindsay, 54, of Sarasota, Fla., a qualified test pilot, late in the 1950s obtained the parts inventory for the P51 fighter used in World War II and Korea and began building new P51s that were supplied to developing countries under U.S. military aid.

In 1969 he began designing and building the Enforcer, which he envisioned as a successor to the A1 Skyraider of Korean War vintage that was brought out of mothballs for use in Vietnam because it could fly lower and slower and stay in the air longer than jets.

In August 1971, the Enforcer was flown in an Air Force competition for close support aircraft for the South Vietnamese government, but the Air Force decided not to buy any of the designs submitted.

Lindsay says the Enforcer surpasses the Air Force's own requirements for close support, and at $900,000 each for the first four planes proposed for the Navy test program, is cheaper than the new $6.1 million A10 jet close support plane that is now coming into the U.S. arsenal.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Alton D. Slay told a Senate armed services subcommittee earlier this year that his service found the Enforcer "deficient in two very important characteristics . . . lethality and survivability" for the 1970s combat environment.

Lindsay disputes that assessment. He says one-fifth of the weight of his plane is ceramic armor, made in Britain, the best in the world. It can withstand fire from Soviet 23 millimeter antiaircraft guns, he says.

As for Soviet heat-seeking SA7 shoulder fired antiaircraft missiles which literally ride up the tail pipes of pure jets such as the A10, Lindsay says the Enforcer deflects some of its jet blast across the tops of the wings and introduces cool air into the rear of the tail pipe to provide as little target as possible.

To protect it against fighter attack, "we can turn inside any jet in the world, stay down on the trees where it is hard for them to get, and we can let go with our .50-caliber machine guns, 20 mm cannons, rockets or Sidewinder missiles," Lindsay says.

Eastern Airlines proposes $299 21-day fare

Miami (AP) — Eastern Airlines proposed on Thursday a special $299 fare that would allow two people traveling together to fly on a nearly unlimited basis among 105 cities in the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean during a 21-day period.

"We're almost right down to bus rates," Eastern spokesman James Ashlock said. "I can't think of anything that benefits the consumer more."

"And we need to fill empty seats. This is just like a store. We need people, and we're trying to come up with incentives to convince people to go."

The offer by Eastern is the first time a major airline has attempted to provide unlimited travel at a basic fee. Smaller airlines have offered similar plans but only on a regional basis, an Eastern spokesman said.

The plan would be similar to a Eurorail pass on European railroads. Amtrak and major American bus companies also offer such a package.

The new fares must be approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Whooping crane egg output boosted

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — The whooping crane, symbol of America's endangered species, is out of danger and no longer plunging toward extinction.

The reason: artificial insemination.

Thanks to a new insemination technique developed at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center at Laurel, Mo., the whoopers are making a comeback, having produced nearly five times as many eggs this year as last.

"Normally a whooper in the wild will lay two eggs, but rarely does more than one chick survive," said Keith M. Schreiner, associate director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "At Patuxent we've taken the eggs away from the whoopers, not only saving the eggs but also causing the birds to recycle. One pair laid nine eggs this year."

So far this year four pairs of captive whoopers at Patuxent have produced 22 eggs, compared with five produced there all of last year. Sixteen eggs from this year's batch were flown in May to Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Idaho and placed in the nests of some close cousins of the whoopers called greater sandhill cranes. Most of the eggs were wiped out in a snowstorm, but three hatched. The chicks are being raised by the sandhill cranes.

In addition, the sandhill cranes have raised 16 other whooper chicks produced from eggs flown into Idaho from the whoopers' traditional nesting grounds in Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park. The transfer of eggs is being undertaken as part of a joint effort by Canada and the United States to establish a second flock of whoopers in the wild.

He'll be in the know now

Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., admitted to the House Rules Committee this week that he knows little about the nation's intelligence-gathering apparatus, "and nothing about covert or clandestine activities except what I have read in the newspapers."

All that must now change. From now on, the 66-year-old Boland will be getting his cloak-and-dagger reports directly — and regularly — from Central Intelligence Agency Director Stansfield Turner. Boland will be chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, which the House voted 227 to 171 to create Thursday.

New Yorkers' ordeal by dark draws to close

New York (UPI) — America's largest city came back out of the darkness Thursday, 20 hours after "an act of God" and maybe mistakes of man cut off power for nine million New Yorkers and unleashed an orgy of ghetto looting.

President Carter, New York Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame launched investigations aimed at insuring that New York — and no other U.S. city — ever again undergoes the ordeal by darkness suffered for 11 hours in 1965 and once more since Wednesday night.

From the Statue of Liberty to Yankee Stadium, from the United Nations to Grand Central Station, the lights came on again. Subways started. Elevators rose. Air conditioners cut the 90-degree heat.

At 6 p.m. EDT the Consolidated Edison Co., New York's power company, said 75% of the city had been switched on. The return of light came slowest in Harlem and the other neo-Hell's Kitchen ghettos where police ducked sniper fire and arrested more than 2,500 looters.

Beame accused Con Ed of "gross negligence." The mayor, running for re-election, said of the power company, "Sometimes I think we ought to condemn them to hang."

Charles Luce, Con Ed board chairman, called that power politics. He predicted all New York would be relit by midnight. Con Ed, which after the 1965 blackout vowed never again, put the 1977 blame other than on man.

"It was an act of God," said Joyce Tucker, the firm's spokeswoman.

Peter Zarakas, Con Ed's vice president for engineering, said three bolts of lightning shot from a summer night's thunderstorm Wednesday and, in 25 minutes, blasted key lines, transformers and generators feeding electricity to New York.

Further, acknowledged Luce, "a fail-safe mechanism, installed after the 1965 blackout, which is designed to reduce 50% of the system's load during power crises, was inadequate."

Asked about the unnamed Con Ed official whose job was to prevent such a metropolitan blowout, Zarakas said, "He feels terrible. He felt he let someone down."

Someone is nine million people.

In the south Bronx looters broke into the Ace Pontiac Co. and drove 50 new automobiles away through the showroom door. In Harlem, policeman John Ryan said hundreds of shops "have been wiped out as if a bomb was dropped. There is not a single television set left in Harlem."

In what a police official called "the night of the animals," the 145 inmates at the Bronx House of Detention set fire to their mattresses. Other imprisoned men fashioned sheet ropes and vainly tried to escape.

From the tenement jungle of Brooklyn's Williamsburg section, patrolman Louis Angelone radioed: "People running down the street with cases of liquor, cartons of shoes, even couches balanced on their heads... there's a mob... shooting."

John and Al's, the Brooklyn gun shop which was the scene of a police siege in 1973, was stripped. Looters wielding guns, clubs and knives injured more than 100 police and firemen. In Brooklyn's Broadway district, looters turned arsonists and then sniped at firemen.

Police chased looters carting goods in trucks and trailers under the Brooklyn elevated train tracks where the chase scene in the movie "The French Connection" was filmed.

Beame surrendered his city hall emergency generator to power the air conditioner at the city morgue where bodies began deteriorating. The power failure caught the females of the Broadway show "O Calcutta" on stage and nude and unable to find dressing rooms; the audience covered them with coats and jackets.

Michael Blow, an 18-year-old Yale freshman who acted as a traffic cop on Park Avenue, said only one motorist yelled at him. "A Harvard man, no doubt," Blow said. When the Great White Way went black, the crew filming the movie "Superman" packed up its klieg lights and went home, the producer explaining, "We had lots of lights but no city."

In Shea Stadium, 25,000 fans of the New York Mets, hardly the type to bow to pressure, clapped when the lights went out and sang "Jingle Bells."

But jollity did not triumph. Fear walked the streets.

There was the Bronx looter, hard by the sandbagged police station called Fort Apache, offering motorists money to tote his

Lincoln not exempt from power outages

No power system, including Lincoln's, is immune from the type of power outage that hit New York City Wednesday, Lincoln Electric System (LES) Administrator Walt Canney said.

"We have enough current resources in plant and equipment and future resources planned and underway to meet all of Lincoln's requirements," Canney said. "I would caution, however, that power failure can occur anytime when triggered by equipment failure."

Canney said LES and other Nebraska systems probably will slightly boost operations and shift power to the east to help New York regain its supply.

"We have brought the Lincoln system up from an overloaded system in the early 1970's," Canney said. Although the system has installed lightning arrestors and other safeguards, he said, heavy winds and lightning could still have an impact.

Lincoln-Lancaster County Civil Defense would help provide emergency temporary generators should Lincoln experience a power failure, Director Norm Francis said.

He said priority would be given to eliminating any life-threatening situations. Hospitals, police and fire departments and public agencies that do not have auxiliary power generators would get help first.

loot away. There were children carrying cases of liquor. There were looters complaining earlier thieves had taken the best merchandise.

In the 1965 11-hour blackout, fewer than 100 persons were arrested. So many went into handcuffs this time that police were forced to reopen the 19th-century Tombs Jail to hold the crowd.

In Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant district, a detective making arrests said, "In 1965 you were dealing with human beings. Now you're dealing with animals."

Police Sgt. Arthur Burns inspected his Brooklyn beat. Buildings burned. Shattered glass crunched under car wheels.

"Before this thing happened, the business community of (Brooklyn's) Broadway was 50% abandoned. Now it's 100% abandoned. It's like Berlin, 1945."

In the Bronx, businessmen stood guard with shotguns, clubs and homemade spears. A looter taunted a shopkeeper who arrived too late:

"I got a whole new wardrobe. And I got a bedroom set and living room set. Thanks, man."

Combined causes blamed in outage

New York (AP) — The cascading power blackout which left 10 million people without electricity through a hot, violent night was caused by lightning and Consolidated Edison Co.'s inability to cut off a limited number of customers quickly, the utility's chairman said Thursday.

Speaking at a news conference at the company's headquarters, chairman Charles F. Luce said the situation was compounded by Con Ed buying much of its power because that was cheaper than producing its own power.

About one-third of those affected by the blackout were still without power as Luce spoke Thursday afternoon. The entire city and nearby Westchester County was plunged into darkness at 9:34 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

And Luce said the utility hoped to have all city power restored by midnight Thursday, as the deadline was once again pushed back.

Luce said a protective system, devised after the disastrous 1965 blackout which struck the Northeast, was designed to cut off 50 per cent of the firm's customers in emergency situations.

Such a cutoff, if successful, would keep power flowing to the other 50 per cent. "But it was not enough to avoid a crash," Luce said.

He said Wednesday's "peculiar sequence of events" would have required that 75 per cent of Con Ed's customers be switched off so that the rest would have power.

Luce said Con Ed was buying almost one-third of its power from outside sources. But lightning strikes on transmission lines knocked out all of this outside power, precipitating the blackout.

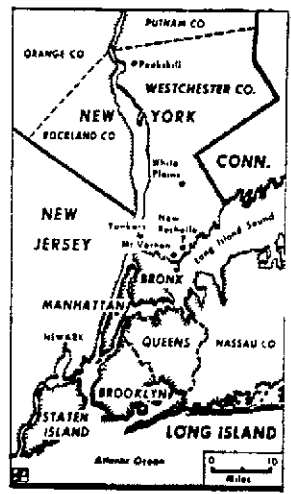

"We could have carried the load if we were not importing so much power," he said.

He added that a panel of consultants will be formed to "conduct a full inquiry into the cause and what corrective actions we need to make this less likely to happen again."

He criticized Mayor Abraham D. Beame for accusing Con Ed of "gross negligence" and said "that's like saying we will have a fair trial before we hang the defendant."

Here is a step-by-step account of how the blackout occurred, as pieced together from interviews with Con Ed spokesmen and other officials:

At about 8:30 p.m., as an electrical storm moved through Westchester County, north of New York City, a bolt of lightning hit a transmission line, shutting down the Indian

Blackout area

Point nuclear generating plant, which was supplying about 10 per cent of the utility's needs.

Within 15 minutes, other lightning bolts shut down the major transmission line connecting Con Ed with its source of cheaper power.

On one of the hottest nights of the year, with power demands at very high levels, about 40 per cent of Con Ed's power was gone.

Engineers in the utility's control room lowered the system's voltage production by 5 per cent, then by an additional 3 per cent. Television pictures wiggled and light bulbs dimmed, but the attempt failed.

Like dominoes falling in a line, power plants began shutting themselves down rather than risk damage from an overload.

Either a lightning bolt or the strain on the system caused a transformer in Westchester to explode, shooting flames 300 feet in the air and producing what one witness called an eerie blue-white light that was seen 40 miles away.

Some engineers, trying to save the system, cut off service to selected areas such as Mount Vernon and Elmsford in Westchester. Others pleaded with neighboring utilities for power, but some inter-utility transmission lines were damaged by the lightning, and the other firms had their own problems producing enough power to satisfy overheated customers.

Then, Con Ed's large Ravenswood plant in the borough of Queens shut down at 9:34 p.m. That was the final blow — all of New York City was darkened.

It was hours before power slowly began to be restored. By late afternoon power had been restored to about 70 per cent of the Con Ed service area.

Human nature argues against neutron bomb

The U.S. Senate might just as well have endorsed the use of mustard gas.

The Senate Wednesday night approved funds for the production of the neutron bomb, which leaves structures and equipment intact but disables and then slowly kills people by radiation. The Senate was encouraged by President Carter's request for neutron bomb development money. He wants the option of using an "enhanced radiation" warhead, but hasn't decided yet whether or not or how to deploy it.

There seems to be little difference between the neutron bomb and mustard gas, the horrible chemical weapon of World War I, or other chemical or biological warfare weapons. Agonizing death for those within the radiation perimeter is a certainty.

So the new weapon can be opposed on humanitarian grounds. That's somewhat of a laugh, of course. All weapons can be opposed on humanitarian grounds. But this weapon is a little more odious because of the priority and preference given mere property and the nature of the death to which its human victims are sentenced.

The arguments for the neutron bomb center on its alleged tactical advantages on the western European front: its being a "clean" (so far as fallout is concerned) nuclear weapon and its ability for use in a confined area, thus emphasizing intent to fight a limited war without calling down on mankind the combined nuclear megatonnage of the superpowers which would write an end to civilization.

We think the latter argument does not hold up.

Although admitting to being unsophisticated in the matter of weaponry and firepower, it seems to us nevertheless that human nature suggests that limited use of a nuclear weapon is a concept founded on wishful thinking. Tactical nuclear weapons use, the chances are, would escalate into full-scale responses on the part of both sides.

Do hostile combatants locked in a life or death struggle willingly refuse to use all at their disposal? Are intentions always absolutely clear and heads cool in the heat of battle?

Experience dictates negative answers to those questions and suggests that controlled use of nuclear weapons should be talked about by military philosophers and then forgotten.

Giving battle field commanders the option will hasten doomsday.

Why risk American lives?

If there is any regime more vicious or hostile to the United States than that which runs North Korea, we're unaware of it.

American servicemen stationed there seem to come off second best each time there is a confrontation — intentional or otherwise — with North Koreans. Thursday an American helicopter strayed into North Korea by accident, was shot down and three crewmen were killed and one was captured. The North Koreans, as is their style, have truculently rejected U.S. attempts to secure release of the captured American and to talk about the incident.

President Carter wants to remove remaining U.S. military personnel from Korea in the next few years, a proposal which is meeting with some resistance in the Congress and the military.

Such incidents as Thursday's, however, should prompt a quicker resolution of the Korean policy argument.

What are our intentions regarding the defense of South Korea?

If the intent is to let South Korea defend herself, which that nation is capable of doing, especially if other outside pressures are brought to bear against North Korea in advance of hostilities, these American deaths the last few years are all the more tragic and wasteful. The President has a point, and it will be more clearly seen in the wake of Thursday's loss.

Omaha will stick to plan

The Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered this week that the school desegregation plan in Omaha will remain in effect the next school year while a modification of that plan is being considered.

It was a compassionate, sensible order reflecting the court's concern for school children, parents, administrators and teachers in Omaha who might have suffered even more had the plan been dropped in the interim.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently told the circuit court to revise the Omaha plan. The lower court will hear arguments on a revised plan during the fall term. Meanwhile, integration will proceed according to the plan implemented last year.

The Omaha school board had asked the circuit court — for reasons we cannot appreciate — to let the district drop the integration plan while the case is being reconsidered. Wisely, the court will not take that course.

Integration is a fact of life. While some busing orders will be revised, perhaps to include less children, the goal remains the same. Why implement a plan, then drop it totally, then adopt a new one affecting only marginally less students? There has been enough chaos in the schools. Taking backward steps would only create more. The court's order was commendable.

New role for Hubert

Jack Germond
Jules Witcover

Carter's initiatives, and counseling him and cabinet members on their wisdom.

"I think Humphrey's a great man, and I never would have said that when I came here," says one of Carter's closest White House aides. "He's been fighting our battles every day, and he's saved our asses many times already."

As deputy president pro tem of the Senate, the special title bestowed on him after he lost the Senate leadership to Robert Byrd, Humphrey has become part of the Democratic ruling bloc. But beyond that, his role as a conduit of senatorial gripes and as senior adviser on the ways of the Hill to Carter and cabinet and sub-cabinet members gives him a foot in both the legislative and executive branches.

That Humphrey should be hitting it off so swimmingly with Carter isn't mystifying when the Minnesota talks about the President. "He's easy to visit with," he says. "He listens. He actually encourages conversation." Which, to Humphrey, is like a beer-drinker being locked inside a brewery overnight with Billy Carter.

A man who ran for president off and on for 16 years, Humphrey seems well-satisfied to be a trusted lieutenant again, after his less-than-happy experience in that role as Lyndon Johnson's vice president. And being Hubert Humphrey, it's also characteristic that he embraces as his own the objectives of his leader.

Humphrey's enthusiasm for causes has always been unbounded. But he is pitching in these days not so much on what should be done as on how it can be done. And after his own failed bids for the presidency, he is back in harness as a team player again.

It's like singing in a choir, one of the great political soloists of the last decade says now. "You have to be careful you don't lose your part. If you listen to all the other parts, you get confused."

Listening has never been one of Hubert Humphrey's most conspicuous traits. But apparently he is doing his share of that, too, for his new friend in the Oval Office who, unlike the last president Humphrey served, seems to appreciate him fully.

Carter's six-month trial run

Marquis Childs

Washington — "Your President Carter is the greatest gamble of this century, and not just for your own country, but for the world."

Those words were spoken by a Britisher in London, a longtime friend who has held many interesting public offices and is now in the House of Lords. The words contain, it seems to me, a fundamental truth about the status of Jimmy Carter both at home and abroad. He has a reservoir of good will with the hope that he will succeed, together with a realization that if he fails, there is no predicting in what direction the West will move.

In the first six months a great deal of criticism has been withheld. Even among those who might be partisan political opponents, the inclination has been to give him a chance: Don't try to pull him down before he has time to show that he can cope with the horrendous problems confronting the President after Watergate and the recession. Today, however, that hopeful interlude is ending. It is being said increasingly that the Carter foreign policy is going nowhere or, rather, that it is going in several different directions at once. While Carter professes to be unable to understand why the human rights pressure should have cut across the attempt to reach a new SALT agreement with the Soviet Union, that is surely no mystery to anyone with even a slight understanding of the rigidity of a totalitarian system.

In Europe recently the frequent private appraisal was: Yes, human rights is a laudable demand; but so far as the Soviet Union is concerned, the end result can only be negative. The controls are so tight, together with incessant propaganda, that even an intimation of change must be resisted by every possible means, no matter how ruthless and brutal they appear to the world beyond the Iron Curtain.

The critics mentioned most often the letter the President wrote to the dissident physicist, Andrei Sakharov, which was delivered by the U.S. embassy in Moscow. That, they felt, went beyond the bounds of moral suasion and impinged on the sovereignty of the Soviet Union. They linked this with the President's reception of Vladimir Bukovsky, the dissident expelled from the Soviet Union.

Along with the human rights issue, the propaganda of the weapons lobby here at home and the uncertain course of Congress in advancing the new neutron bomb have deflated the hope of meeting the October deadline for a new SALT agreement. As to how much of this is the fault of U.S. negotiating proposals that blow alternately hot and cold, only history and the full disclosure of the secret documents will make a judgment possible. But with the leverage offered by the stalemate and the pressures of the weaponeers, a new and accelerated round of the arms race seems almost inevitable.

As for the precarious balance in the Middle East, Carter and, indirectly, his National Security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, have talked too much on one side and the other. At his last press conference the President forewarned any more talk, at least until he had a chance to meet with the new Israeli prime minister, Menahem Begin — a ban he quickly violated.

One after the other, the President has sent a series of proposals on domestic policy to the Congress. They have more often than not had the air of intellectual concepts rather than of political proposals meeting the desires and the understanding of the average citizen.

In his energy bill, Carter tried to do too much. The need was for a simple, straightforward proposal that would conserve energy even at the cost of much higher gasoline prices or even, as he has now come to suggest, gasoline rationing. Instead, it had the look of a Rube Goldberg contraption that would modify the tax laws, control and-or decontrol oil and natural gas and convert unwilling Americans into voluntary conservers. Congress is meddling with it and the likelihood is for a truncated measure that will please no one.

One thing I wish Carter would stop doing is dredging up his campaign promises, apparently in the hope that he can be proved an honest man. He keeps repeating that he will balance the budget by 1980 or '81. With the prospective deficit running at close to $60 billion, that would seem an exercise comparable to squaring the circle.

But, you see, he and the men around him are learning. This is often said in the six-months' trial run. Is there time for on-the-job learning? I go on hoping he will succeed. As my friend in London puts it, so very much turns on the outcome.

Investigation of penal complex called for part of the breakdown in communication which the prison administration bemoans.

Point Of View

By Rev. David McCreary
Para-legal counsel,
Neb. Civil Liberties Union
Lincoln, Neb.

In our rush to condemn criminals, we often forget that they, like us, are human beings. For whatever reason they are incarcerated, they do have a right to be heard about their living conditions and not be subjected to cruel and unusual punishment.

While most of the reporting of recent events at the penitentiary is from the administration's point of view, very little has been written on the prisoners and how they see the situation. Such a perspective is important and valuable, because they are the ones who are dying, being maimed, and suffering psychological distress due to current practices and conditions at the penitentiary.

The recent protest in the yard, according to one prisoner, would have lasted only 15 minutes had their request to meet with the press been granted by the prison officials. Evidently the blackout on such news is not considered

In reading the account of Shawn Sparks' death in the paper, discrepancies exist between the official version and the way it was told to me by certain inmates. While the paper reports that the cry for help came after 11:00 p.m., prisoners say that Sparks' cell-mates cried out at 10:55. The guards arrived at 11:10 p.m., and Sparks was not removed from the cell-house until 12:10 a.m. If this is so, why did it take 15 minutes for the guards to arrive? And why was there no prompt and proper medical care?

Prisoners also say that Sparks had made two separate attempts to check into the adjustment center ("the hole") that day. This would suggest that he was seeking protection from himself or from others, and the possibility that he died of a drug overdose, not electric shock. In any case, the autopsy at this writing still seems inconclusive.

Whatever the actual findings in this incident, it seems unjustifiable to place a 16-year-old in the penitentiary and subject someone that age to the homosexual pressures within the walls. One prisoner said that Shawn Sparks looked like a 14-year-old girl and knew when he arrived that he would never last.

To a sensitive administration in this time of crisis, these comments and questions might seem like cheap shots. Had recent events been isolated incidents, that might be true. But in fact very little of what happens at the penal complex ever makes the news, and it is sad that these tragedies have to happen before we care enough to do something.

Why in the world is a blind man there, or a man confined to a wheelchair? How could such men protect themselves against attack? How dangerous is it for disabled people to be in buildings with automatic doors? Do the guards have adequate training in first aid? Why was the proposal of the 1-11 Jaycees to undergo first-aid training turned down six months ago by the administration? All these and many more questions need to be answered.

While I have no independent way of checking out the facts, neither do I dismiss the prisoners' point of view as necessarily untrustworthy. If prisoners are bending the truth to fit their interests, the administration is certainly capable of the same thing, and has the media and power to do so.

To get at the truth, I suggest an independent investigation by persons with no vested interests in the penal system. We have had enough cover-ups in recent American politics to know that lingering doubts will persist as long as there is no independent investigation of the facts and conditions leading up to the present incidents at the penal complex.

Fairgrounds more tax liability than asset

Fool's gold

Lincoln, Neb.

Golden memories

Lincoln, Neb.
The recent picture of Mr. Nathan Gold opened the floodgates of memories of when I worked there. World War II had taken thousands of our youngsters, my teenage son among them. Work was my only salvation. In the Normandy Beach landing, of three landing craft, the first and last were blown up. The middle one, which carried my son, missed the mines and landed safely. He came home wearing the Bronze Star.

In the mornings when Gold's doors opened to the crowds that waited outside, a bell sounded. All movement stopped as silent prayers were said. There was a war on, and Mr. Gold had proclaimed this daily pause.

At first, I worked in the mail order department. We used to smile at the spotless white sheets Mr. Nathan Gold sent his son, Bill, at camp. I also machine-marked nylon hose for the hundreds of women who lined up to the bank at 10th and O to claw feverishly to get those rationed wearables.

Refrigerators were hard to come by, so the store sent me to another store to see how it was that they had plenty. I gave the clerk a song and dance about my son's marriage. The clerk took it hook, line and sinker and showed me a filled storeroom to choose from. They were getting them for a certain apartment owner, the clerk said. All of which gave our store an opening.

One day a shabbily dressed man came in, looking at these expensive boxes. None of the clerks saw fit to waste his time. Mr. Gold watched for a while, then spoke to the man who had decided on one. He took out a roll of bills and handed Mr. Gold $300. He also had his own truck in the alley. Imagine the stupefied clerks who could have made the sale. Mr. Gold left them with: "Never judge a person by his clothes!" He was quite a man of business know-how.

One day, eating lunch, I looked across the room and there was my sailor-son, smiling as I dashed past shoppers to greet him. He was home on unexpected furlough. Hundreds of war brides, following their soldier-husbands across the states as my young daughter did, always found temporary jobs at Gold & Co.

Insulation ordinance

Lincoln, Neb.
On behalf of the Mayor's Energy Action Committee, I wish to thank The Star for editorial support of an insulation code "with standards which don't accord undeserved preferences." (July 11). The committee has worked with members of PECT — Professional Energy Conservation Team — made up of representatives of building industries and utilities for over a year to develop a code which would be economically sound and provide energy savings in Lincoln, Neb.

The City Council members have spent many hours, as have the volunteer committee members to reach agreement on such an important piece of legislation. The 18 members of the energy committee represent many viewpoints from the community and have as their interest the goal of saving energy which is derived from non-renewable resources. These choices are not the ones that we WANT to make, but believe we MUST make if our country is to retain its strength.

Adequate insulation is an improvement which will pay for itself in just a few years and requires minimal life-style change to provide substantial energy savings.

We are proud that Lincoln has many citizens who have provided the leadership for this insulation ordinance which is truly in the public interest.

Isn't adoption better?

Lincoln, Neb.
It is amazing to me that people are so taken in by the weak and self-centered arguments of those who favor abortion! Common sense tells us that abortion is wrong. It one gives the matter just a little thought, it becomes obvious that a human being begins at his beginning — at conception. We can't set an arbitrary date at which time that life suddenly becomes a human being with rights and before which, it is a "nothing" which can be discarded.

Man, however, has a fantastic ability to rationalize and convince himself that what he wants to believe is true. So now self-indulgent people have decided that if a baby is inconvenient for a woman, she should have the right to choose to destroy it while it is still unseen and called an embryo or a fetus. We are told that a woman must be given this freedom of choice over her own body. It occurs to me that a woman HAS freedom of choice and that she makes the choice BEFORE conception occurs. If she participates in beginning a human life, then she must take responsibility for her actions and for that new life. She must consider the rights of that new tiny body.

Again, many rationalize and say that an unwanted child will be a neglected and abused child and that it is better to destroy it before it is born. It has been my observation that that unplanned child is often a special blessing to its family. If the baby is truly unwanted, it can be given up for adoption and then is a special blessing to the adoptive family. Wouldn't it be far better to give up a child for adoption than to destroy it by abortion?

B-1 cancellation

Lincoln, Neb.
President Carter is to be commended for his decision to stop production of the B-1 bomber. It was a decision which required bold leadership in his refusal to bow to demands by the Pentagon and Rockwell International, but which was made possible by the thousands of Americans who spoke out against the B-1 as an unnecessary weapon for our defense.

It would likewise be a sign of leadership if Congress would now pass Rep. Bingham's Worker Security Bill, H.R. 7002 which is designed to provide benefits and training for workers whose jobs are terminated when government contracts are cancelled. This legislation is needed to help provide jobs for displaced B-1 employees.

The cancellation of B-1 production will mean a savings of $27 billion in taxpayers' money. Hopefully the Congress will redirect this money to programs designed to meet human needs in our communities. These dollars can be used to provide the real security of adequate health care, good education, decent housing, adequate nutrition, liveable cities and renewable energy sources.

While Carter deserves applause for the termination of the B-1, one still questions his methods of proclaiming a policy toward disarmament and zero nuclear weapons by promotion of the Cruise Missile and neutron bomb. Development of both of these weapons can severely limit the opportunity for real reduction of armaments in international agreements.

Doubts exist over cruise missile

By Drew Middleton
Defense Writer

New York — The Carter administration's acceptance of the cruise missile as a substitute for an advanced manned bomber has accelerated the Air Force and Navy development programs but failed to still doubts within the defense community over the weapon's effectiveness.

The doubts focus on the maximum range of the cruise missile, its speed, the development and production schedule and the weapon's vulnerability to detection and interception.

President Carter, in cancelling the B1, took the position that the manned bomber had been overtaken by the cruise missile technology. Administration defense experts concede certain deficiencies in the cruise missile, but they say that they are convinced that further development of the weapon will resolve these difficulties.

Air Force officers said that at its maximum range of 1,200 miles, the air-launched cruise missile would be able to cover only part of the scheduled targets in the Soviet Union.

The course of a cruise missile must be pre-programmed to avoid fixed hostile defense systems. But, according to experienced officers, the missile is "blind" to mobile antiaircraft missiles such as the major Soviet missile systems.

At its present stage of development, the sources said, the cruise missile carries only a small nuclear warhead.

The primary problem of the two services is to speed development and production and insure that the cruise missile has an operational capability by 1979 rather than in the next decade.

Since the programs were begun by the Air Force and the Navy, there has been intense competition between the two services.

Boeing Aerospace Co., which is developing the Air Force missile, believes that a longer-range version of the air-launched weapon can be produced through four relatively simple steps — introducing a new fuel tank 50 inches longer than the present tank, attaching a longer cover over the tank, bolting a 16-inch boattail and increasing the wing span by 18.6 inches.

Analysis

Boeing expects to complete the first long range missile in September 1978, with flight tests to begin shortly thereafter.

One means of acceleration cited by Capt. Walter Locke of the Navy is a common guidance system for both the Navy's Tomahawk cruise missile and the Air Force missile. Locke is manager of the joint cruise missile project office in the Pentagon.

The common guidance system would permit the flight-test results of the Tomahawk program to be applied to the Air Force missile. The guidance system in the Tomahawk is a terrain-following system developed by McDonnell Douglas.

The Air Force's long-range B model missile has not flown yet. The earlier A model has a range of 750 miles, and Pentagon sources do not believe that this is what President Carter had in mind when he talked of a missile able to hit vital targets in the Soviet Union without requiring its launching vehicle, a B52, to enter Russian air space.

However, the ultimate effectiveness of the cruise missile will depend, Pentagon sources said, on improvements other than range.

By the time the first cruise missiles are operational, the Defense Department believes that they will have been improved by the installation of a system for programmed evasion actions and electronic counter measures against hostile defenses.

Skeptics in the Pentagon also expressed the hope that by 1979 the speed of the cruise missile will have increased. General Dynamics, the manufacturer of the Tomahawk, puts the missile's speed at 550 miles per hour.

Qualified Pentagon sources question whether this speed is sufficient, even at low altitudes, to evade surface-to-air missiles and anti-aircraft guns.

They also pointed out that the cruise missiles carried by B52's would initially have to fly at high altitudes to achieve their maximum range, where the missiles would be more vulnerable to radar detection and interception.

Issues like these, officers of both services pointed out, were important but not vital when the cruise missile was planned as a backup system for the B1, the ICBM and the submarine launched ballistic missile in the nuclear armory. With the selection of the cruise missile as a primary strategic weapon, they said, its problems are of basic importance to deterrence and defense.

Before Carter decided to drop production of the B1 bomber and concentrate on cruise missiles the approved program for cruise missile production was 2,328 A and B versions of the air launched weapon and 1,200 Tomahawks. Qualified Pentagon sources expect the administration to raise both production levels.

No production levels have been set for the ground launched cruise missiles. These are a version of the Tomahawk to be deployed by the Air Force's Tactical Air Command units in central Europe. Full scale development of this weapon is due to begin in fiscal year 1978 pending congressional approval.

According to Air Force sources, the 150 B52G's and 90 B52H's now operational would have to be modified to carry the longer range B model of the air launched missile and the electronic counter measures capability of the aircraft would have to be improved.

The present estimate is that modification will cost about $700,000 per aircraft. Under present planning, all of the B52G's will be modified plus some of the B52H's.

The Air Force also has proposed that the B52G's be fitted with a new turbofan engine, emphasizing that improved engines are necessary if the bomber is to penetrate Soviet air space.

The service also will request money for the purchase of wide-bodied transports for the Strategic Air Command. These aircraft will be fitted with pylons and bays to carry cruise missiles. The Pentagon estimate is that an aircraft comparable to the 747 transport could carry 10 to 12 cruise missiles.

Robert Hotz, publisher and editor of Aviation Week and Space Technology, claims in the magazine's July 11 edition that the savings arising from rejection of the B1 may prove "illusory."

He asserts that the cost of the B1 in current dollars is $60 million, not, as has been forecast, $100 million and that the price of a B747 wide-bodied jet is "about $35 million plus an equal amount for adding military avionics and launching equipment."

The cruise missile, essentially an improvement on the German V1 weapon of World War II, despite its problems has great attractiveness to military planners.

The air launched version is small, about 14 feet, and although slow is able to hedge hop under present radar cover. Surface ships and submarines can carry many more cruise missiles than can bombers. The strategic, that is nuclear, version of the Tomahawk is about 21 feet.

Neutron bomb debated

Analysis

Washington — What kind of weapons would best deter a Soviet attack on Western Europe? That question is at the heart of the current debate over whether the United States should produce the so-called "neutron bomb" for use by U.S. forces in Europe.

Designed to kill enemy troops within a restricted radius while causing little physical damage, the new warhead is the latest in a series of military innovations over the last 20 years to arm U.S. forces with nuclear weapons having a circumscribed punch.

The basic premise of Pentagon planners has been that a Soviet attack is deterred by the threat of weapons that could be used without destroying West Germany in order to save it.

Critics of the move toward smaller nuclear weapons warn that the prospect of a surgically clean nuclear strike would tempt NATO commanders to rely too heavily on the bombs. They argue that any tactical use of nuclear weapons would start a spiraling escalation that would lead to a U.S.-Soviet nuclear war.

The proposed new warheads for the Army's 60-mile-range Lance missile and its 8-inch and 144mm howitzers are one component in this push to develop "usable" nuclear weapons. They are designed to limit physical destruction by greatly reducing the radius of explosive blast, fire and nuclear fallout (radioactive debris that kills by contact and retains its potency for long periods).

But the new warheads increase the power of a fourth effect of a nuclear blast: the momentary wave of neutron radiation that kills persons, even those in a building or tank, without affecting the structure or vehicle.

Pentagon planners argue that the new warheads would help offset the Soviet bloc's numerical advantage of more than two-to-one in tanks and combat planes in central Europe.

The new warheads also would be more advantageous than older models in a NATO counterattack against a Soviet invasion because they would not destroy bridges and highways. And their radiation effects are transient — fallout from older bombs would keep NATO troops out of a target area for several days.

Should the United States manufacture the new "enhanced radiation" weapon?

"The Soviets are not deterred by NATO weapons which the alliance probably cannot use," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., recently told the Senate. "They are deterred by weapons whose use is credible."

Nunn said opponents of the new warheads wanted to keep nuclear weapons so destructive that there would be great reluctance to use them. But he maintained that if Moscow concluded that U.S. thinking followed those lines, "then deterrence is weakened and . . . the likelihood of Soviet aggression is increased. Thus if we deter ourselves we make more likely the necessity to use the weapons."

"Nuclear war must remain so clearly a step into the terrible unknown that nobody will venture to try it," argued Sen. Dick Clark, D-Ia., during the Senate's debate.

Other opponents argued that U.S. efforts to make limited use of nuclear weapons would be thwarted by a likely Soviet retaliation using their own tactical nuclear weapons, which are much larger and more destructive. And they insisted that, in the confusion of battle, the limited scope of a NATO attack might not be apparent to enemy commanders.

Sen. H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., asserted that the new weapons are especially repugnant from a moral point of view since they are designed to destroy persons without damaging buildings.

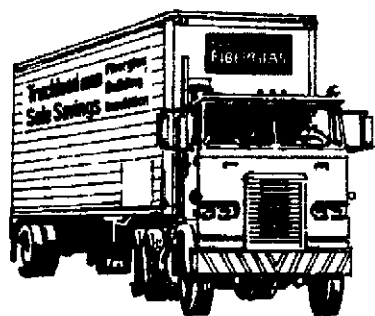

"To perpetrate death by neutron radiation smacks of the sort of chemical and biological warfare which has historically outraged civilized nations," he argued.

Odd weather worries many

(c) New York Times

Houston — The year began with a blizzard of superlatives among the coldest winters in history in the East, driest in the West. People froze in New York, tomatoes glaciated in Florida, streams ran dry in Oregon and bears sweated in Alaska — in January.

Now, with winter emergencies forgotten, natural gas flowing, record crops forecast and swimming pools brimming, many Americans have settled into the air-conditioned cocoons of summer, more oblivious than ever to the vagaries of weather.

Weather experts mean while have had time to soberly reassess the shrill pronouncements of winter. Their consensus: The weather was just as bizarre and worrisome as they said it was. And more importantly, it still is.

The United States and much of the globe is experiencing some of the most extreme weather of the century. Climate and national security experts have become increasingly concerned. The words coldest, driest, hottest and wettest are sprinkled daily in local weather reports and their effects on grain harvests, energy usage, fisheries, water consumption and even social unrest have become matters of day to day scrutiny by several federal agencies.

The Pentagon concerned with the national security implications of global weather-induced crop failures, has launched a major climate study in hopes of anticipating weather extremes and possible economic and social disruptions through the year 2000.

Several international groups have launched climate studies, full time climatologists have been hired in 26 states. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the U.S. Department of Agriculture have stepped up national and worldwide climate research and data collection.

"Within the last year or so, the effort has just mushroomed," said Malcolm Reid, head of the assessment division of the Center for Climatic and Environmental Assessment in Washington, formed as a part of NOAA in November 1974.

Meteorologists and climatologists argue over whether the climate is undergoing a major change, whether the earth is getting gradually colder or warmer, and if so why. Most of them now agree, however, that after several decades of unusually stable and gentle weather — during which modern agriculture developed and population burgeoned — the planet has entered a period of weather extremes.

Nobody contradicts any more that we are in a period of greater weather variability, said Dr. Norton D. Strommen, director of the NOAA climate assessment branch in Columbia, Mo. There is a lot of new interest because we don't have the safety margins of idle crop lands, fewer people and new technology coming on stream that we used to have.

The major extreme in the United States at the moment is drought. It extends over 30 of the country and is spreading. Ironically, the grain belt has been largely spared so far. Water rationing which began in California is now commonplace throughout the west and has spread into Iowa and has started as far east as North Carolina. Shrubs and trees starved of subsurface moisture, are wilting and dying in patches around the nation. Nearly three-fourths of the nation's rivers are flowing below normal, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. In 10 states, they are at record lows for June.

The snowflakes of southern Florida last January — they were even spotted in Nassau, the Bahamas — have been replaced by extremely hot temperatures during the past two weeks over much of the south.

After one of their coldest springs on record, Greece and Turkey recorded last week what they said were highs of more than 120 degrees.

Douglas M. LeCompe, a meteorologist in the special projects office of the Environmental Data Service in Washington, compiles a weekly report of the world's abnormal weather. For the past several weeks, he said, unusually high temperatures have been recorded over much of the northern hemisphere. Northern Europe, which went through a severe drought last year, just completed going through one of its coldest and wettest springs on record this year — a drastic reversal.

Northeastern India has been getting two or three times its normal rainfall for the past three months because of an unprecedented low pressure block there, he said. Southern China and Southeast Asia are pulling out of a severe winter drought with abundant monsoon rains, but crops are continuing to parch in much of the Caribbean, especially Haiti, Jamaica, and southern Puerto Rico.

"In terms of drought, the United States seems to have everybody beat," said LeCompe. "It's enormous and it's very unusual."

Not all unusual weather is bad, he noted, saying, "If anything is unusual at the moment, it's how abnormally good the weather is over the world's major spring wheat regions. Russia's wheat region is enormous west of the Urals, and the weather is just wonderful there." He cautioned, however, that unusually good weather one year could be just as unusually bad the next year.

What is causing the extremes? Explanations center around changes in upper atmosphere circulation patterns.

"Normally the winds go around the hemisphere more or less west to east with little wave-like motions north and south," said A. James Wagner, with the long-range prediction group of the National Weather Service. This past winter, the north-south movement was much greater than usual because of a persistent high pressure ridge off the West Coast. This pattern brought a lot of cold dry air down from Canada and it did not allow very much warm moist air to come up from the Gulf of Mexico. So the result was a dry, cold winter.

Dr. Reid Bryson, a climatologist at the University of Wisconsin, said that during the past several decades, the west-east circulation pattern dipped only slightly.

The air didn't move very far south or north, so you'd have a couple of days of cool and a couple of days of warm," he said. "For the past couple of years we have been having enormous north-south loops which bring cold air all the way from the Arctic into Florida and warm air from the tropics up into Greenland."

Why the extreme fluctuations?

Guatemala City, Guatemala (UPI) — The possibility of a bloodbath between the far left and the far right has been raised with the establishment of a secret anti-communist army which vows to kill all communists in Guatemala.

The ESA — that is Spanish acronym — said in a newspaper press release announcing its formation that communist violence will be met by anti-communist violence.

All communists will be killed without mercy, it said. The emergence of the ESA came less than a month after the Marxist Guerrilla Army of the Poor (FAR) ambushed the government by kidnapping El Salvador's ambassador, Col. Eduardo Casanova on the eve of an Inter American Development Bank conference in Guatemala. Casanova was released after IADB officials agreed to a public reading of an anti-capitalist statement written by the kidnappers.

Shortly after the kidnapping, labor lawyer Mario Lopez Larrave was shot to death by unknown assailants as he took his car from his garage. The Guerrilla Army of the Poor has threatened vengeance.

During the past 18 months, violence has increased in this Central American nation of six million inhabitants — much of it traced to the guerrilla army. The army was organized in 1974 — but didn't start its operations until the following year — from remnants of a guerrilla force of dissident army officers defeated in the 1960s.

Venditte wants Laetrile legal

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. Pat Venditte of Omaha said Thursday he has authorized a bill to be drafted which would permit the controversial drug Laetrile to be prescribed, administered and manufactured in Nebraska.

Proponents of the drug say that it is an anti-cancer agent. Opponents, including the federal government, say it is worthless.

Venditte said he is submitting the legislation at the request of a constituent whose 8-year-old daughter has cancer.

"This man's family and many more like them want the freedom of choice in this matter of Laetrile as cancer treatment," Venditte said.

He said his research into the matter revealed that most cancers are untreatable with available drugs on the market today. He said many persons are spending thousands of dollars traveling to Mexico for Laetrile.

"If nothing else," Venditte said in a news release, "Laetrile may serve as a treatment which gives cancer patients hope and peace of mind."

"The evidence of great risk to an individual has not been proven," Venditte said. "Laetrile is believed to be a relatively innocuous drug. It is not harmful, not toxic."

Venditte also said that "if Laetrile is completely ineffective in containing cancer, that fact is far more likely to become apparent if it is legally available to those who want to take the risk."

Several state legislatures have approved the distribution and administration of Laetrile and a federal District Court judge in Cheyenne, Wyo., recently issued an order permitting an Cheyenne attorney to use the drug without legal repercussions.

Judge Ewing Kerr said the attorney had a constitutional right to life and the drug could hold some hope for continued life, despite the man's cancer.

Lack of rails may boost food prices

Norfolk (UPI) — Further railroad abandonments would only escalate food costs, Louis C. Wiebe, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union, said Thursday during an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

"The farmers are dependent on the railroads to transport their products to market," Wiebe said. "During the energy shortage, we should make every effort to utilize this energy-efficient form of transportation."

He was a witness during a hearing called by the ICC on the proposed abandonment of 172 miles of Chicago & North Western track between Norfolk and Winner, S.D., 114 miles of which are in Nebraska.

Wiebe said a shift to highway transportation of grain would also lead to increased highway deterioration and higher maintenance.

He said a study by the South Dakota Farmers Union and the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association showed it can cost a wheat farmer from 25 to 40 cents more per bushel to ship grain by truck rather than by rail.

The abandonment under consideration by the ICC is the largest ever proposed for Nebraska. It would affect 22 rural communities and is part of the 16,000 miles of line major railroads plan to abandon during the next three years.

Wisner man raised top-gaining pigs

Columbus — Fred McGuire of Wisner exhibited the fastest-gaining pen of five pigs of the 67 pens shown during the third annual Nebraska Feeder Pig Show held last February, according to data compiled recently after all pigs were marketed.

The outcome of the feeding trial, in which each of the show's pens automatically was entered, was released Thursday night during the Nebraska Feeder Pig Exposition Wrap-Up Show at the Platte County Agricultural Park.

The 292 pigs slaughtered produced about 31.5 tons (62,835 pounds) of pork, and weighed an average of 211.5 pounds each, said William Zollinger, district Extension livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The pigs weighed an average of 48.6 pounds each when they were entered in the feeding trial following the live show — a total of about seven tons.

McGuire's pen, which finished third in the heavyweight division of the live show, had an average daily gain of 1.8 pounds per pig. That figure was down slightly from the 1.85 pounds per day per pig average posted by last year's winner, Gale Schafer of Newman Grove.

McGuire's pen featured the top-gaining pig exhibited at the show, a barrow that gained an average of 1.97 pounds daily.

The second fastest-growing pen was shown by Bob Renner of Dodge. His pen, which finished first in the mediumweight division of the live show, had an average daily gain of 1.76 pounds per day.

Honors for the third place pen and top gaining gilt went to James Renner, also of Dodge, whose pigs each gained an average of 1.75 pounds a day, led by a gilt gaining 1.93 pounds a day. His pen also had been entered in the mediumweight division of the live show, but did not place in the top 10.

University Place park considered

Further study will be undertaken on the request of University Place residents to convert surplus school property at 40th and Adams to a park.

That action was agreed to by the City Park and Recreation Board Thursday after residents aired their wishes. Earlier the residents had presented the same request to the Lincoln Public School Board.

The 40th and Adams location is the site of the Lincoln Learning Center.

Meeting is delayed

The meeting of the executive board of the Nebraska Task Force for Domestic Violence set for Friday has been postponed until July 21 at 1:30 p.m. according to a Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women spokesperson.

Stirrup celebration set

Ashland — Coronation ceremonies at the annual Stirrup celebration here will take place at 8:30 p.m. tonight when a new king and queen will be crowned at the football stadium.

The coronation will highlight a three-day celebration, to continue through the weekend. Events scheduled will include a kiddies parade, Girl Scout breakfast, street carnival, livestock show, and baseball tournament.

Fireworks ban drive's aim

Norfolk (AP) — Mrs. Karen Martin of Norfolk has started a petition drive aimed at a ban of fireworks in the city except for public displays. She will present her petitions to the City Council Monday night.

Both Mindens celebrating

Minden (AP) — The City of Minden will celebrate its centennial this summer and the town it was named after in Germany will observe its 1,000th birthday.

Andrew Hove, mayor of the Minden in Nebraska, said he received word that Minden in Westphalia, Germany — a city of 84,000 population — will hold its celebration this fall. Included in the program will be a display of pictures including some from the Nebraska Mindens.

Minden, Neb., will hold its centennial program July 27-31.

Transportation funded

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha-Council Bluffs Metro Area Planning Agency has been awarded a $100,000 federal urban mass transportation grant to support continued transportation planning in the area.

Health Dept. changes seen

Grand Island (UPI) — The Grand Island-Hall County Health Dept. will have to "run a little differently" this fiscal year, according to director Ed Edwards.

Following a long dispute between the city and county, the county is going to contribute about $1,400 more to the city. Edwards said the county has agreed to pay $63,550 and the city $62,085. The total is several thousand dollars less than the $136,000 the Health Dept. originally proposed.

Nebraska film cited

Seward (AP) — The film "A Time to See," produced by Bankers Life of Nebraska and starring Prof. Reinhold A. Marxhausen of Concordia College in Seward, has received the Best Film in Religious Education Award from the Theological Educators in Associated Ministries, the college announced.

Budget requests top income

Omaha (AP) — Budget requests from department heads in Douglas County involve nearly $4 million more than the county's income for the fiscal year.

Board chairman George Buglewicz says the first of a series of budget meetings will be held this morning.

Another inmate tries suicide

Similarities continue among the four inmates who tried to break out of the Lincoln City Jail June 27.

Donald Routhier, Robert Bessent, Marvin Gerhardt and Robert Parker took two hostages and dickered with law officers during that futile attempt. Routhier, Bessent and Gerhardt were transferred to the Nebraska Penal Complex while Parker remained in his cell at the city jail.

Routhier committed suicide by hanging himself with a bedsheet rope in his prison cell early July 2. During the investigation of that incident it was learned that Bessent, in a prison cell adjacent to Routhier, had attempted suicide in the city jail sometime before the escape attempt. He was transferred to the Lincoln Regional Center pending the results of mental tests.

Early Thursday, 25-year-old Parker made what has been termed a "feeble suicide attempt" in his city jail cell, according to city corrections coordinator Pat Rackers. Parker apparently removed the nylon edging from his blanket and tied one end to the ceiling and the other around his neck. The nylon broke and Parker fell to the floor with facial injuries.

He was found lying semiconscious on the floor of his cell about 3:15 a.m. He was taken to Lincoln General Hospital where he remained in good condition late Thursday afternoon.

No determination had been made late Thursday whether to return Parker to his city jail cell, transfer him to the penal complex or the Lincoln Regional Center.

Rackers said he had talked with Parker in the past in an attempt to determine if he had suicidal tendencies. He strongly indicated that he did not, Rackers said. He also said that Parker and other inmates were aware of the developments in the case.

Parker, who was in jail for the alleged theft of $300 worth of tires, also faces a maximum sentence of 110 years in prison if convicted of the jailbreak-related charges.

Federal charges are filed in jail break-out attempt

Three men involved in the aborted break-out at the Lincoln city jail last month were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury in Omaha.

Robert Parker, Robert Bessent and Marvin Gerhardt were each charged with one count of assaulting a federal officer. The crime carries a penalty of 10 years in prison, or a $10,000 fine, or both, a spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office said.

The three will be arraigned in U.S. District Court in Lincoln in 10 days, the spokesman added.

The three inmates, along with Donald Routhier, held U.S. Marshal Jack Douglas and jailer Michael Wooten hostage for more than six hours on June 27. They released the hostages after Asst. Police Chief Roger LaPage said he would not press charges.

State charges were filed the following day in Lancaster County Court.

Routhier committed suicide July 2. Bessent and Parker have also tried to commit suicide since the attempted breakout.

Former students charged in insurance fraud

Omaha (AP) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted four Arabs, all former students in the Omaha area, for a series of insurance mail frauds costing 21 insurance companies some $40,000.

The four were indicted separately on a total 22 mail fraud counts stemming from allegedly multiple claims on hospitalization insurance.

Indicted were: Emil Massoud Assad, 30, an accountant charged with seven counts of mail fraud; Nabil M. Assad, 27, formerly of Omaha, and now believed to be in Seattle, Wash. The brother of Emil Assad, he is charged with four counts of mail fraud.

Elias K. Karam, 30, of Downey, Calif., a former Omaha resident. He is charged with seven counts of mail fraud.

Ramzi A. Totari, 22, a former Omaha resident now in San Jose, Calif., charged with four counts of mail fraud.

In one instance, Karam allegedly applied hospitalization with seven companies between Sept. 22, 1975, and Oct. 2, 1975. On Nov. 6, he fell in the bathtub of his Omaha apartment and suffered a cerebral concussion. In all, Karam made nine claims on the accident, which led to insurance payments of $6,711.

Emil Assad, allegedly filed 20 insurance claims stemming from two accidents, one in Omaha and one in Downey while visiting Karam, worth a total of $22,440.

Grand jury indictments name five for alleged fraud scheme

Omaha (AP) — Five persons alleged to be involved in a cattle fraud scheme were among persons named in 25 indictments Thursday by a federal grand jury in Omaha.

LaVoy Rexford Orner, Janis Orner, Algie Leonard Olson, Terry Lynn Hass, and Robert W. White were charged in connection with an alleged scheme to defraud cattle feeders. U.S. Attn. Daniel Wherry said the alleged scheme involved advertisement of the sale of Colorado ranch cattle which allegedly were inferior to what had been advertised.

In other indictments, Roger E. Struble of Sergeant Bluff, Iowa; Randy G. Hollinshead of Garden Grove, Calif., and Michael Muckenheimer of Parker, Ariz., were charged with possession with intent to distribute cocaine in connection with the seizure of an estimated $160,000 worth of cocaine at the Omaha airport.

Verl Elroy Edwards, a South Sioux City, Neb., grocery store owner was indicted on 10 counts for an alleged scheme to defraud through the U.S. mails. The alleged scheme involved the mailing of pound lots of coupons to a clearing house for redemption.

Eddie J. Robbins, Richard J. Mathews and James R. Willoughby, all from the Omaha area, were indicted on charges of mail fraud and fraudulent sale of securities. The three formed a dog grooming firm known as Rovin Rover, a similar business known as K-9 Kurb Kare, and a parent firm known as Diversified Industries.

Mathews is a security officer in the Air Force Looking Glass Mission.

Other indictments issued Thursday:

—Orville Max Gross, 43, of Wakefield, felony possession of a firearm.

—Paul P. Wells, 25, of Gering, felony possession of a firearm, false and fictitious statements.

—Francisco Hiram Hernandez-Sanchez, California, nine counts of illegally transporting aliens.

—Richard Lewis, 24, of Omaha, forgery and possession of stolen mail.

—William James Knight, 26, of Omaha, possession of stolen mail.

—William James Coughlin, 23, Pittsburgh, Pa., interstate transportation of forged security.

—Vernon D. Hairston, 19, of Omaha, uttering forged and counterfeited obligations $20 bills.

—Lawrence H. Winston, 36, of Omaha, uttering falsely made and forged instruments.

—Tommy Leroy Whitaker of Sterling, Colo., Bernard Reed Robinson of Mitchell, Neb., Robert Neil Yohe of Cheyenne, Wyo., interstate transportation of stolen goods motor vehicles. Yohe also was indicted on a charge of theft from interstate shipment.

—Joseph Digilio, 64, of Omaha, filing a false return and evasion of excise taxes.

—Leland J. and Leona B. Real, evasion of income taxes.

—Steve Hansen and Douglas Laumbach, possession of mail and forgery.

—Danny J. Else, false statements.

—Thomas Preston Bousfield, possession of stolen mail.

Con game catches woman twice

Omaha (AP) — An 83-year-old Omaha woman was bilked out of $5,000 on two separate occasions last month.

She discovered the two billings Wednesday when her bank statement arrived in the mail, showing a balance of only $1,000. Instead of the $11,000 she knew should have been listed.

Detectives said there was little they could do. She was the victim of the "bank examiner" con game, police said.

The woman told police she twice received calls from a man who identified himself as a police detective. The man asked her to dial 911, the police emergency number to talk with Police Chief Richard Andersen.

She did, and each time a man came on the line identifying himself as the chief. He asked the woman to go to the bank and withdraw $5,000 which later was picked up at her home by a detective who would redeposit it and trace it to find out who was embezzling money at the bank.

Police said the con men knew that when calls are made from one phone to another in the same exchange area, the connection sometimes isn't broken for about 15 seconds after one of the parties hangs up, therefore when the woman thought she called 911, a con man actually was still on her line.

Police said the $10,000 the woman lost was most of her life savings.

Man converts scraps into handcrafted gifts

Harvard (AP) — Since 1963, Dan Brehm and his lathe have converted wood chips, scrap wood and logs into candleholders, bowls, plates and plant stands.

"Oh my golly, I've made probably five dozen of those tall candleholders, hundreds and hundreds of toothpick holders and several hundred of the smaller holders," said Brehm, 73.

"Many of the pieces fill Brehm's home in Harvard thanks to the foresight of his wife, Uda, although folks were buying his handcrafted items as fast as he could turn them off the lathe.

Brehm sets up his woodworking table on wheels outdoors.

"I do all my work outside in the shade," he said, pushing back a yellow vented cap. "The breeze blows the dust away. I can see so much better out here than under artificial light."

The shade in the summer and southern sun in the winter allows the woodworker to work year round.

Brehm uses all kinds of wood to make his creations. From a seven-inch diameter log to the finished turned product takes about two hours. But, if Brehm has to start from a large log, it takes about four hours to turn out a candleholder.

A special decorative design he uses generates much comment. With a piece of wire, Brehm burns in a dark line around the tops of many pieces.

"I hold it against the wood while it's spinning on the lathe," he explained. "Oh, the sparks really fly. People ask me how I get them so straight and even. I tell them you have to have a straight pencil."

Brehm attacks his designs from an artistic and practical viewpoint.

"Sometimes I have a design in mind before I start turning it. But, when you begin, you might run into a knot or rotted places and have to dig deeper with a chisel to get around it," he said. "Then you come up with a different design, altogether."

He figures his special wood products are scattered throughout the western states. While at a hospital in Bakersfield, Calif., staff members learned of his hobby and he has orders for more than 100 when he returns.

Twice a week, Brehm travels to Aurora for kidney dialysis. The nurses and staff members are beginning to want his woodworks.

"I've come a long ways since my dialysis treatment began a year ago," he said. "I've been slowly improving. The doctors can't figure it out, but I feel better now than I have in years."

Whether its woodworking, gardening, keeping house or trips to Aurora, Brehm manages to fill his life to the hilt.

"I don't have time to play golf," the retired farmer said. "I'm too busy. My work is cut out for me every day."

At 73, Brehm turns scrap wood into hundreds of items.

Lincoln crime down, robberies increase

Associated Press

All categories of crime in Lincoln except robbery declined during the first half of 1977.

Police Chief George Hansen released figures Thursday for the second quarter for this year, showing 51 fewer burglaries and 37 fewer assaults.

There were 10 more robberies during the quarter, including a rash of hold-ups during the first part of June, Hansen said.

Second quarter statistics continued to reflect a decline in criminal activity in Lincoln. The report listed the categories of homicide, rape, assault, burglary, larceny, auto theft and robbery.

Hansen said the drop in the crime rate was due to more citizen involvement in providing police with information.

Plattsmouth man killed in a two-car collision

Nebraska City (AP) — A Plattsmouth man was killed in a two-car collision on Highway 73 75 Wednesday night four miles south of here.

He was identified as Burl C. Ogle, 32. The Nebraska State Patrol said he was trying to pass another northbound car when the vehicles collided but an embankment and both rolled.

The occupants of the other car were both treated and released for minor cuts and bruises at a Nebraska City hospital.

They are Kirk L. Simpson, 28, of Omaha, the driver, and Tony Champouns, 27, of Omaha.

Study's aim to simplify transfer student's moves

State institutions should work together to make transfers from one college to another as simple as possible for students, according to a study done for the Postsecondary Education Commission.

The recommendations, which will be distributed to colleges throughout the state, include the following:

- Each college should accept other colleges' competence to offer courses at their level.
- Each school should have transfer policies and procedures outlined in the school catalogue and in a separate information booklet. The policies should be clear and include how transfer credits will be evaluated and how many D or pass grades will be accepted.
- Two- and four-year schools should work together on acceptance of student credit when a student moves from the two-year program into a four-year college or university.
- There should be an agreement among all state schools to accept and record credit hours from all other schools.

The problems that students encounter in trying to transfer from one school to another often stem from lack of mutual understanding of course content and programs among college faculty at the institutions, according to the report.

And the report stresses working on a cooperative relationship between department members on various campuses.

The report also suggests that the "upside down" degree, where technical skills are first acquired at a two-year school and theoretical background then applied by the four-year school, should be considered.

A public hearing on the recommendations will be in early November.

Omaha police capture suspects in alleged Illinois abduction

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Police Wednesday arrested four persons wanted in connection with the alleged abduction of a 16-year-old boy from Joliet, Ill.

The youth told police he was forced at gunpoint to drive the four to Omaha, where he was released unharmed.

Three of the four suspects were captured in Omaha, the fourth was arrested during the noon hour in nearby Council Bluffs, Iowa, police said.

One police officer was injured during the fourth arrest, officials said. The officer reportedly received leg, neck, back and head injuries when he jumped from the Interstate 480 bridge in Council Bluffs while pursuing the suspect.

Police said they had telephoned the youth's home in Illinois and learned that the father had reported his son missing and his car stolen Wednesday night.

Police have not released the names of anyone involved.

Hamilton rips sheriff's absence

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton said Thursday that the Lancaster County sheriff's office is a "poorly managed department" because "the sheriff is never in town to run it."

"It's incredible how the sheriff's budget has escalated" over the past few years, Hamilton said.

"That department could be managed a hell of a lot better than it is. I haven't even seen the sheriff (Merle Karnopp) in months," Hamilton added.

In recent discussions of the sheriff's budget, Karnopp has never spoken with the board, but has delegated this responsibility to Chief Deputy Del Ziemann.

Karnopp, an elected official whose term expires next year, has served as sheriff since 1951.

If a new sheriff were in office, the department would be run more efficiently, Hamilton asserted.

Ziemann said Karnopp was out of town during most of the budget deliberations. Karnopp was apparently in his office for a short time Thursday, but The Star was unable to reach him for comment.

"I've seen a steady improvement in the operation of the sheriff's office over the eight years I've been here," Commissioner Bob Colm said.

After various cuts made by the board, the sheriff's budget for fiscal 1977-78 is up 8% from last year, at $1,319,584, not including a cost-of-living raise.

Commissioners have tentatively decided to budget $31,536 in federal revenue sharing money for six new patrol cars.

Using revenue-sharing will give the commissioners some control over how the sheriff spends the money, Hamilton said he is only willing to purchase all six cars if the department receives a federal highway safety grant covering the salaries of two deputies.

Ziemann told commissioners earlier this week that the addition of the two deputies would free more staff for crime prevention and investigation.

A letter to the board Thursday signed by Karnopp said it would cost $16,586 to equip the two deputies, including the price of two cars.

Most of the equipment costs could be provided without adding to the 1977-78 budget "if requested appropriations are not cut too drastically," the letter said.

Attorneys 'jealous' of county salaries

Some lawyers in Lincoln apparently are jealous of the high salaries earned by deputy attorneys in the Lancaster County Attorney's office.

I've had plenty of complaints from younger attorneys in Lincoln about the salaries we're paying there," County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton said Thursday.

Hamilton is himself an attorney, but not in active practice.

To have these young guys two to three years out of law school making $20,000 to $25,000 is highly competitive with what they'd be earning in private practice," he said.

The average earnings for a lawyer with only two or three years' experience is between $14,000 and $18,000 outside of government, Hamilton said.

County Attorney Ron Lahners has asked for promotions for five of his deputies, giving them wage hikes of between $1,500 and $1,000 each for the next fiscal year.

Hamilton has opposed the promotions throughout recent budget talks, but Commissioner Jan Gauger has begun to argue for them.

Failure to promote the attorneys will increase turnover in Lahners' office, which will cost the county more than the salary increases in the long run, Mrs. Gauger said.

Hamilton was not convinced. "Soon you'll have six to eight lawyers there making more than the county attorney," he said.

Lahners' salary, which is limited by law, is $30,792 annually. Chief Deputy Bernie McGinn is earning $31,662 — already more than Lahners.

Mrs. Gauger went on to say that she is not ready to vote for the promotions now, because she feels that if they are granted, commissioners need to reconsider personnel requests made by other departments.

Attorneys in the public defender's office would deserve the same treatment, she said.

Authority OK given solar bids

The bidding process for putting a solar heating unit on the new Lincoln Housing Authority building got a go-ahead Thursday.

The solar project will cost about $45,000, LHA architects have estimated, with about $14,000 coming from a federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) grant.

Solar energy would provide about 70% of the space heating and 90% of the water heating needs for the building to be constructed at 57th and R.

Bailey gives up commission seat

Former Lincoln City Councilwoman Sue Bailey has resigned her seat on the Region II Crime Commission, according to Executive Director Curt Snobberger.

The resignation left the door open for the appointment of Leo Scherer, newly-elected councilman to the commission, which will remain at 21 members, not 22 as reported in the Thursday, July 14, Star.

Scherer had served previously on the crime commission as an aide to then-Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

Soviets get 'blanks'
New York (AP) — Corning Glass Works announced it had signed an agreement to build and export to the Soviet Union a glassmaking machine for the production of light bulb "blanks," the glass portion of the bulb.

A Corning spokesman said the Soviets would produce the rest of the bulb.

Visits will be curtailed at Bryan

Bryan Memorial Hospital will be closed to visitors Saturday between 7 and 10 p.m., so that damages sustained during last Sunday's electrical storm can be repaired.

An automatic transfer switch, which is needed to change the hospital from regular to emergency power, has been shipped from Pennsylvania and will be installed Saturday evening, said Jim Gember of Bryan's public information office.

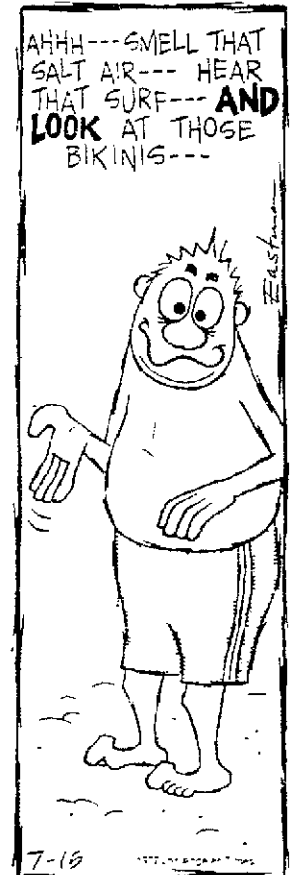

To complete the installation, "the majority of services will be turned off," he said. However, equipment requiring electricity, such as respirators, will be maintained through emergency power.

In view of the limited power, visitors are asked not to come to the hospital Saturday evening and persons visiting patients Saturday afternoon are being asked to leave by 6 p.m.

The situation will create an "inconvenience for visitors who may find themselves in darkened hallways and stairwells," Gember said. "Also, we want our people to give extra care to the patients" during the power outage.

Hospital officials also ask that persons needing emergency treatment be taken to St. Elizabeth and Lincoln General emergency rooms during the three-hour period, Gember said.

At age 74 ax trick easily done

Staff photos by Web Ray

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

County Supt. of Schools Glenn E. Turner has a reputation to live up to.

For years he has been known far and wide for a feat with an ax which requires strength and muscle control most men can't muster.

"There goes Dr. Turner," people say. "He's the guy that does the ax trick."

It's a matter of public record: The April 5, 1962 Lincoln Journal carried a story with step-by-step pictures showing how Dr. Turner, then age 58, could swing an ax one-handed from the ground and lay the blade against his nose.

But the Star's question was: can he still do it in 1977, at age 74?

There was only one way to find out: Challenge Turner to do it again for the camera.

As the pictures on this page demonstrate, he can still perform the feat with ease.

In five to ten seconds, Turner holds an ax in one hand by the end of the handle, and lifts it vertically until the blade touches his face. Most people's wrists give out about half-way up — if they can lift the ax at all.

"It's no trick," he says. "It's just having what it takes to do it."

He learned the stunt from his grandfather, who had a lot of experience chopping wood. Technically, it's known as the "lumberjack's kiss."

"I used to be able to do it with a sledge hammer," Turner says, with no false modesty.

Now he is content to use a standard-sized ax.

He keeps it leaning against the wall in his office, ready to show off for any visitors who dare suggest that he is in his declining years.

In his youth, Turner was in excellent physical condition. "I did manual labor — I still prefer it to sitting still," he says. He went out for all the sports in college — especially basketball and football.

A leg injury suffered in football at Cotner College curtailed his running ability somewhat, but not his strength.

When he worked as a filling station attendant while attending the University of Nebraska, he used to screw the gasoline-pump valves so tight the other attendants couldn't get them open.

Turner also has the distinction of being the oldest elected official in Lancaster County government, both in chronological age and in length of term of office.

He has been superintendent of schools since January 1943 — a term of 35 years.

He has been Lancaster County's unofficial "lumberjack's kiss" champion for longer than that.

"I don't know anybody else who does it," he said. It looks like it's a dying art.

Hobbies good clue to officials

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

Regardless of the general consensus, public officials are not all automatons who spend their days in stuffy offices and smoke-filled rooms.

One way to find out someone's humanness is to take a look at his or her pastime or hobby — see how he fills the couple of hours each day he's not kissing babies or eating ethnic food on the campaign trail.

Before becoming mayor Helen Beosalis was renowned for her skill with needle and thread. She bought her first ready-made dress in years only when, as mayor, she found she had lost a lot of sewing time.

Gov. J. James Exon likes politics, baseball and fishing in that order. Also he likes to tell jokes, which may or may not be funny, but somehow they all get laughed at.

His fishing hobby is good for his family. His wife raises fishing worms.

As for other local and state figures their spare time is spent in lots of ways.

Frank Marsh, state treasurer, is into photography, particularly sunsets and historical work. "The Statehouse is a mecca for photographers," he said.

Sometimes I'll even go to the top of the Statehouse after hours. I can get some really good shots up there," he said.

John Robinson, city councilman, is another photographer. "I rarely get a chance, because of my duties, to participate in my hobbies which are photography and art," he said. "The art is just sketching. It's purely for personal purposes."

Paul Douglas, attorney general said, "I don't have a hobby. Most of my spare time is used trying to get caught up."

An avowed workaholic, Douglas is famous for spending long nights and weekends taking care of business.

George K. Hansen, Lincoln police chief, reads works and plays golf.

He subscribes to five news magazines, several professional journals and is on the mailing list for professional studies from national police agencies. He also does reviews and commentaries of some of the studies he receives.

But he does find time for a novel now and then. "It goes in streaks. I'll read three novels in a row then won't read another one for two months."

Dallas Johnson, Lincoln fire chief, reports, "I collect old cast iron toys and my wife collects dolls."

"Last weekend we drove to Iowa for a toy auction. We enjoy antiques too, but we really like collecting the toys."

His favorite is an old cast iron, horse-drawn steamer fire vehicle. What else?

Rolland Harr, airport manager, golfs, boats and goes dancing. Since he's in the airport golf league, he plays Thursday nights but he also plays Saturday and Sunday mornings. "It gets me out and relaxes me."

He boats because he lives on the banks of Capital Beach.

And his voice swings when he speaks of his dancing with his wife. They cut a rug two to three times a week at the Capital Beach clubhouse or other favorite spots.

—Gerald Whelan, Lt. governor, replied, "I play sports. I like golf and tennis. I broke my arm last April playing tennis."

"Then I like to fool around with my grandchildren. That's best of all."

He's also into art appreciation and frequents Lincoln and Omaha art galleries as well as sidewalk and student sales.

—Allen Beermann, secretary of state said, "I water ski, play racquetball and model railroad."

His skiing dates back to his putting himself through college in ski shows many years ago. But he rarely gets a chance to ski now as his wife works weekends and holidays.

He's involved in large model railroads, a la Lionel, which takes considerable space in his basement. "If I expand any more, it'll be in divorce court."

He considers his set small, with only three engines on only one level.

Pro bidding opinions often differ

By B. Jay Becker

Every month, in the Bridge World magazine, a panel of well-known experts give their opinions on bidding problems submitted to them in advance. The questions are invariably of a controversial nature, and it is not surprising that opinions are sometimes vigorously expressed. There was quite a difference of opinion on this problem:

You are South. North-South vulnerable, and the bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	3 ♦	Dble	Pass

What would you now bid with the following hand?

♠AKQ7 ♥AQJ6 ♦— ♣AK82

The question was posed as a duplicate problem, but it can be treated as a rubber bridge problem also. Of the 53 panelists, 24 voted for four diamonds; 20 for pass; 14 for three hearts.

Bridge

FISHBEIN: Four diamonds. No problem for me. I may get a top score by passing but will ignore it, for I think I can do better with the cuebid. I will not settle for less than a slam.

FIELD: Four diamonds. I realize that partner knows the vulnerability too, but we may be cold for seven hearts.

KAHN: Pass. I hope partner knows what he's doing. If so, we have no slam and West will make only four or five tricks.

MILES: Pass. If South had opened one spade, North could not double two diamonds without general strength; he certainly should not double with ♠xx ♥xx ♦QJ9876 ♣Jxx. But after a forcing two-bid, a double with this type of hand is the only kind of double that makes sense. There is no need for North to double just to show some scattered strength, since South is obligated to bid again.

A penalty double with tricks in the opponent's suit and nothing on the side is the only kind of double that is acceptable after a strong two bid. Such a double means that the defensive chances are very good and the offensive chances are very poor.

REMEY: Three hearts. There are two risks that go with any call you make. First, if you pass, you could miss a slam. Second, if you bid and there is no slam, you might have beaten three diamonds 1,100 points or even more.

In that case, partner would turn to a sympathetic kibitzer and quietly say: "He probably thought I was asleep and that I didn't know the vulnerability." However, to be perfectly frank, this is not much of a problem with me because I never get partners good enough to have kibitzers.

Officer flipped cigarette and then troubles began

DALLAS, AP — Police Officer C. W. Cottengame flipped a cigarette butt and started to walk a traffic citation to Mrs. Karen Ewing, and that's when his troubles began. Last May 28, he issued her a citation for violation of a city anti-smoking ordinance. It was cited by Mrs. Ewing, who pushed herself as a combative environmentalist.

Mrs. Ewing said that as the officer issued his citation, she also issued a cigarette butt to the ground. She asked the officer to take care of the butt, and he did so.

Cottengame conceded to her that it was wrong to throw the cigarette butt, but his attorney said that was not a legal admission of guilt and is now asking for a jury trial for the officer.

Mrs. Ewing, who paid her $20 ticket for improper use of a turning lane, intends to get as her own lawyer at the July 26 Municipal Court trial.

Let me the law and I admit it," she said. "I paid my fine. Why can't he do the same?"

Attorney carries a possible fine of $1 to $200.

Career women, men separated

New York, N.Y. (UPI) — An industrial psychologist contends that there is only one personality factor that separates career women from their male counterparts — and in this factor women are generally superior.

Arthur A. Witkin, chief psychologist for the Personnel Sciences Center, identifies this factor as independence.

"This includes the ability to make a decision without a committee to support it, an emotional detachment that enables the person to see himself and his surroundings objectively, assertiveness and the ability to react to criticism without undue sensitivity," he says.

Consumer marketplace full of pseudo-choices

(c) Chicago Daily News

Karen Kelly, average consumer, walks out of a grocery with a cart laden with colorful and attractive boxes, slips into her 1977 model car with the latest in contour design, drives to her Tudor-style, split-level home and turns on her favorite soap opera in which her TV friends contend with crime and crisis in between commercials promoting household products.

Karen has appeared to make a series of choices, from her grocery purchases to her TV program, but are they really free choices?

Jeffrey Schrank, author of Dell's newly released "Snap, Crackle and Popular Taste," says no.

In Karen's grocery cart, for example, is a box with a picture of a lemon cream pie. The photograph is appealing and conjures up memories of the fresh pie mom used to bake. But read the label, said Schrank, and you'll discover that the pie is composed mostly of water and chemicals, completely devoid of lemons or cream.

"The average eater does not know what he or she is eating, how it is made, what it contains or even its long-term effects," said Schrank.

The danger of substituting chemicals for natural ingredients, he adds, is that the highly processed foods will be considered normal and artificial flavors will become the standard by which we judge natural foods.

"I call it the pineapple juice effect. People become so used to drinking the juice from a metal can that they think pineapple juice tastes, funny without a tin flavor."

Schrank also lists the variety of name brands sponsored by each of the major food corporations such as Quaker Oats and General Mills.

"Hiding behind the over-choice of brand names in any supermarket is the fact that 50 corporations effectively control much of the food we eat," he said.

The same threat of corporate control exists in the auto industry, according to Schrank. "In Detroit, automobile improvements mean making cars more salable rather than more efficient or functional," he said.

When Karen bought her 1977 car, she had the option of adding wood-grain plastic trim, whitewalls, a sunroof and other cosmetic features. But she had no choice in the area of safety, ease of maintenance and durability, he said.

Schrank calls these controlled options "pseudo-choice" because they are limited by invisible boundaries (what the car manufacturers want to provide) and they promote products for "anyone" rather than for "someone."

"In pseudo-choice the world is a multiple-choice test. We are free to answer questions only in terms of the options presented. A real choice test would only have blank spaces for our answers," Schrank argued.

Why do consumers settle for new chrome lines instead of improved performance in their cars? Schrank calls it sociological propaganda. Through careful advertising and controlled markets, corporate manufacturers are reaching people through unconscious habits — a kind of persuasion from within.

Most people consider themselves immune to the persuasion techniques employed by advertisers, he said, but the success of advertising proves otherwise.

Using a list of "measel words" that are designed to avoid a firm commitment, Schrank shows how consumers are deluded into false expectations: products "act against" rather than "cure" and have the "look of" rather than being "made of."

Advertisers know their mark and play to people's "personality holes," he said, by capitalizing on "the lack of genuinely pleasurable experiences and the absence of self-acceptance."

"Psycho-sell ads educate us to look out there for solutions instead of within . . . they sell instant solutions instead of the motivation needed to gain psychological maturity. The danger of the 'hidden persuaders' is not that they are seldom noticed, but that they help to keep ourself hidden."

But, says Schrank, outwitting the deceptors is a game anyone can win once they know the rules. He is optimistic that the percentage of informed consumers is on the rise.

The popularity of house brands in plain packaging is evidence, he added, that more people are becoming immune to the ploys of promotion.

Yet, one area where the public is showing less resistance to corporate control is TV said Schrank. Like an addiction, viewers require every-increasing doses (from an average of five hours a day in 1963 to six hours in 1974).

"From the viewpoint of those who control TV, the programs exist only to gather crowds to watch commercials," he said, demonstrating a mock TV schedule in which the focus of the hour is the jump from one commercial to the next and the program merely a suspense builder in between.

TV manipulation has become so successful, he claims, that the choice has become which program to watch, not whether the TV should be turned on.

Just as broadcasters present a schedule of programs designed to be the most palatable to the greatest number of people, so our popular culture — including music, film and art — is also often reduced to the "lowest level of acceptability" at the expense of quality, says Schrank.

The dilemma, admits Schrank, is that the products of mass culture are usually cheaper and easier to obtain than products of authentic quality.

Yet when consumers continue to buy food that looks like but isn't the real thing, to settle for more chrome and less reliability in their autos and to turn on the set rather than opting for a good book, they — in their very acceptance — perpetuate the illusion of free choice.

Consulting a lawyer doesn't always have to cost arm and leg

New York — Many people don't consult a lawyer when they should, because they think it will cost them an arm and a leg just to walk in the door. But on simple problems, like what your rights are if a neighbor's tree starts bumping your living room window, or what kind of note to sign when you lend someone money, you might get all the lawyering you need for $15 or $30.

Some lawyers are indeed in the business of dismembering clients. One of the stereotypical definitions of the profession comes from Kurt Vonnegut Jr., who wrote: "Just as a good pilot should always be looking for places to land, so should a lawyer be looking for situations where large amounts of money are about to change hands."

But in fact, the vast number of lawyers will charge reasonable fees for the simple services (especially if the consumer makes it clear that he's price-shopping). Where they don't, they'll soon have to, due to an important Supreme Court decision handed down last week.

The court declared that lawyers may no longer be prohibited from advertising their services, the type of lawsuits they generally handle, and the prices they charge. The first lawyers to advertise are likely to be those who are younger and hungrier,

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant
Quinn

and therefore willing to cut prices in order to get business. This will put price pressure on the more established lawyers, at least for their routine services.

As more firms take to legal advertising, you may be surprised to learn that the market price of many services is not as high as you may have imagined. Some people put off making wills, for example, because they fear the cost. But in fact a simple will may cost no more than $30 to $50.

Two days after the Supreme Court handed down its decision, two law firms advertised the following prices in a New York City paper: simple wills, $30; uncontested divorces, $235 to $250 plus $80 in court costs; uncontested separation agreements, involving limited assets, $75; change of name, $95 plus $65 in court costs; adoptions, $215.

By contrast, at some of the flossier New York firms, where the price of secretaries and mahogany paneling drives fees into the stratosphere, it's not unusual for uncontested divorces to cost $5,000 to $7,500.

Consumers are often their own worst enemies in shopping for a lawyer. They're mightily impressed by mahogany paneling, which is the reason lawyers spend so much money on it.

You might choose an expensive lawyer with fancy offices over a plain-living sole practitioner, on the assumption that costlier is better. That's sometimes true. But it's more likely that the two lawyers are equally competent (or incompetent, as the case may be). The high fee may simply reflect the price of mahogany. It often happens that expensive lawyers make no more profit on a case than lower-cost lawyers whose office rent isn't as high.

Many consumers don't realize how vulnerable to price pressure many lawyers are. If you pay a call, say you want to hire the lawyer, and ask his fee, he'll give you what he calls his "usual rate." But if you have a simple problem that any local lawyer can handle, and you tell him that you're comparing prices, he'll probably quote you a lower fee rather than lose the business.

Now that some low-cost lawyers are starting to advertise, you'll have their prices as benchmarks in your negotiations with the lawyer of your choice.

Another thing that many consumers don't realize is that they may get all the information they need in a fairly short session, at a low price. When you go to a lawyer for a divorce or lawsuit, the fee may be considerable — and you might assume that's typical of a lawyer's charge. But if you simply want to know your rights in a particular matter or have the lawyer make a phone call for you, it might be done very cheaply. Ask the lawyer what his fee is for a short consultation: it may be no more than $15 to $50, depending on the subject.

As time passes, more lawyers may start advertising low initial consultation fees. This should encourage more consumers to call a lawyer before they run the risk of trouble, and not after. That, in itself, should save you money.

13-year-old boy found he was old enough

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if a 13-year-old boy could get a girl pregnant, and I'm glad you said yes because I am living proof of it.

Five months ago I got a 15-year-old girl pregnant. Her parents and mine raised a terrible fuss and sent threats back and forth. The girl finally got an abortion, and we aren't allowed to see each other again.

Might I add that my puberty started when I was 11.

THIRTEEN AND OLD ENOUGH

DEAR THIRTEEN: And might I add that you aren't the only 13-year-old boy who wrote to confirm that fact? I also heard from several girls stating that they had become pregnant at the age of 12. (Readers: If you find that shocking, consider this: In 1975, 12,642 babies were born in the U.S. to girls between the ages of 10 and 14.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a fourth grade teacher employed in a suburb of Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

During the past few years I have found that most of my students seem to appreciate physical contact.

In early December my building principal called me into his office and told me that a parent had called the superintendent and expressed concern that my actions were, if not morally improper, certainly "weird" and abnormal.

After my initial shock I asked who complained, and what specifically was the nature of their complaint. I never was told who, but I was told that each of the following actions was cause for alarm.

1. I had allowed some of my students to occasionally sit on my lap.

2. I had occasionally given a student a back rub.

3. I had occasionally given a student a hug.

For many months thereafter I have been continually impressed how a paranoid, bigoted, uninformed minority could make a life miserable and influence school policies.

I deeply regret that an all too influential element of my community finds it impossible, to accept a MALE teacher who is physically affectionate to his students but has no intention of sexual exploitation.

How can I possibly continue to meet the human needs of my students when I am expected to respond like a cold-blooded computer?

DEAR CONFUSED: I fail to see what being male has to do with the criticism. I'm sure a female teacher would be criticized for giving her students back rubs, allowing them to sit on her lap and hugging them.

While your motives may have been beyond reproach, the kind of physical contact you engaged in might easily be mistaken for intimacy beyond acceptable limits. Kindergarten and possibly first graders, yes — but fourth graders, no.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how come all the people who know how to run the country are, busy driving taxicabs and cutting hair?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Give thanks that all the people who CLAIM to know how to run the country are driving taxicabs and cutting hair — and NOT running the country.

Hate to write letters: Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24c) envelope.

Iowa officials order removal ad

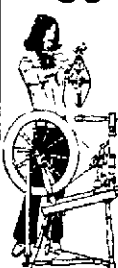

Iowa City, Iowa (UPI) — University of Iowa officials don't want to give the wrong impression.

That's why the registrar's office staff was directed to rip off the back covers of 4,000 copies of the new fall course schedule that contained a full-page beer advertisement.

The schedules contain advertising for the first time this year to help defray the printing costs of the 25,000 copies.

"Much of the concern was whether the schedule of courses, as an academic document was the best place for this kind of ad," Philip Jones, assistant vice president of administrative services said.

Lightning is one hazard of summer

Washington (AP) — Lightning kills more Americans each year than floods, tornadoes or hurricanes and the government warns that summer is the most dangerous season.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says that more than 200 persons are killed by lightning in the United States each year, including those who die in lightning-caused fires.

But the danger from lightning is often underrated because it seldom harms more than one or two persons at a time.

When a storm is approaching, officials say you should get indoors or into a vehicle with an enclosed cab, but don't touch metal parts of the vehicle. The vehicle will conduct electricity harmlessly around you to the ground.

The common idea that the rubber tires provide protection is a misconception, officials say. The powerful voltage of lightning easily jumps from the rim to the ground.

If you are caught outside during a storm, NOAA scientists urge you to follow these rules.

— Do not seek shelter under a tree in an open area, the tree is a natural lightning rod.

— Avoid projecting yourself above the landscape, such as standing on a hilltop, on the beach, in an open field or fishing from a small boat.

— Put down golf clubs and avoid metal objects such as farm equipment, motorcycles, bicycles, scooters, golf carts, metal fences and pipes.

— Stay away from small sheds or other isolated structures.

— In the woods, go to a low area under a thick growth of small trees, but avoid ditches or other areas filled with water.

— If in a field or prairie and you feel your hair stand on end, lightning is about to strike: drop to your knees and bend forward, putting your hands on your knees. In this position you keep low and have as little of your body touching the ground as possible.

Suva, Fiji — A bright, blue sea morning on the Fiji island of Viti Levu. The Fiji Times, founded in 1869, is the first paper published each day in the world. The international dateline is just east of here.

When it's Saturday a hundred miles east, it's Sunday in Suva.

The dateline is the 180 degree line — almost 50 years ago they bent the dateline eastward so that it includes all the Fiji islands and Tonga.

There was a chap who ran a grog shop on the island of Taveuni," said a British businessman here. "As you'll see on the map, the 180 degree line runs right through the island. Ran right through his grog shop as a matter of fact."

Well, there were Sunday closing laws in those missionary days. But when it was Sunday in front of his shop, it was still Saturday at the back door. So he simply served — quite legally — out the back.

When it got around to be Sunday at the back door, it was Monday at the front door. And he served legally from there.

"They say that was why the line was bent." It's a good story anyway.

Three cruise ships sailed into Suva harbor this morning and unloaded 3,500 shopping made tourists on this little tropical town. (Suva has 50,000 people. About three small streets. And a couple of dozen Hindu tailors who "make you nice suit in one day, sir." They will. And it looks like it.)

The native market is a block from the docks. When the 3,500 hit it the place was a shambles.

"How much is this?"
"Oh, look at the tortoise shell earrings!"

"We all got out of the way and into the breezeway bar of the Grand Pacific, trying to look tropical and colorful. At a time like this, there's nothing like a cold glass of Foster's Australian beer."

It cost England millions of pounds to keep the 300 Fiji Islands in the monarchy as a Crown Colony. When Fiji became independent seven years ago, the big British checks stopped coming in.

An important new income falls from tourists. Fiji has built new hotels and is making vacations as attractive as possible.

A government man said, "We would like to get more Americans. But air fares have been set high by international agreement. An American spends much less money to get to Honolulu from the mainland."

Six nine of 10 tourists to Fiji are from Australia. It's a short flight from Sydney. We are their Hawaii.

The wonderful, green Fiji Islands lie right on the cruise ship path. It is a free port — no taxes, no duty.

When Britain took the islands from King Cakobau in 1874 they planted sugar cane to build the economy. Unfortunately, Fiji men don't work in the fields. They fish and fight and drink gallons of kava, a root mixture.

Work in sugar cane?" said the Fijians. "You must be out of your mind. Only women work in the fields."

Britain thereupon imported East Indians. Today they outnumber the Fiji natives. They have their own schools and temples. They run the free port shops, selling Japanese umbrellas, binoculars and Makimoto cultured pearls.

Mr. India lives in here profitably.

The tourist trade hit the market. And all the East Indian shopkeepers got sad looks on their faces. They said:

"Make it 70c, Madam. I have five children at home and I only make 12c profit."

Immigrants become American citizens

U.S. District Court No. 1 was probably packed more full Thursday than it has ever been. More than 150 persons filled the benches and jury box or sat on the floor near the double oak doors.

The spectators didn't come to watch an important trial or listen to lawyers battle over the merits of a lawsuit. They came to watch 49 persons become American citizens.

And after the 15-minute ceremony, none of them looked disappointed.

Two or three times a year, a federal judge turns foreign immigrants into American citizens with the help of an oath of office and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Among the spectators were several babies who cried in their mother's arms.

"Don't be embarrassed," Senior U.S. District Judge Robert Van Pelt told the mothers. "Crying babies don't bother me—I'm a grandfather. Don't feel you have to take them outside."

Everyone in the courtroom stood. The prospective Americans raised their right hands, and the court clerk read the oath:

"... That you absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty. That you will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States... That you will bear arms on behalf of the U.S.... That you take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion."

After the oath, Judge Van Pelt gave a short speech in which he noted that everyone, except American Indians, started in this country as immigrants. Then he presented each new American with citizenship papers and a small flag, and shook each one's hand.

Families and friends surrounded the new citizens and congratulated them.

Flashbulbs went off—a rarity in the courtroom, for only on such ceremonial occasions may pictures be taken in court. The judge posed with a few new Americans.

Outside the court, Nicole Lee Mittelstaedt, age 4, and Darrah Jean Mittelstaedt, age 5, of Korea but now of Nebraska, posed with their new flags while their proud parents took pictures.

And slowly, the men, women and children from Korea, China, Mexico, The Philippines and elsewhere went back to their jobs and homes, just a little different.

Libraries' survey shows good service

The Lincoln City Libraries recently received a vote of confidence from 3,403 respondents to a survey questionnaire asking patrons to rate the Lincoln public libraries' performance.

At a Thursday meeting, Director Charles Dairymple told board members that of those answering the questionnaire, 91% said library service was good to excellent.

The survey also showed that 85% of the respondents used the library at least once a month and 34% said they visited a public library several times each month, Dairymple said.

He added that 51% of the patrons used the main library as well as the branch and mini-libraries. Of the 75% who came to the library to find a specific book, 86% were successful in finding the material they wanted.

Construction of the main library addition is proceeding on schedule, Dairymple reported at the meeting.

The two-story addition on the north and east side of Bennett Martin Library should be completed Jan. 23, 1978.

The board also discussed plans to better mark the "prairie plot" at Gere Library, 56th and Normal.

The prairie plot consists of "native grasses and trees that were the natural vegetation of this area at the time this country was settled," Dairymple said. "The plantings we have include Canary grass, Buffalo Grass, bluestem, Blue Gamma, Prairie Cord and Indian Grass."

"The area extends east of the Gere building from the property line south behind the library and the Lincoln Community Playhouse parking lots," Dairymple said.

Educational committee proposes revised administrator contracts

Salary and/or fringe benefit increases of 6% and revised three year contracts for the Lincoln public schools' top administrators have been recommended by a special Lincoln Board of Education committee.

The increases are about the same as for other administrators and less than the 8.5% teacher salary budgeted increase negotiated with the Lincoln Education Association.

The board will act on the committee proposals July 28, when it formally adopts the 1977-78 budget.

The administrators to receive the salary increases and revised contracts are John Prash, superintendent; Robert Den Hartog and Ronald Brandt, associate superintendents and Assistant Superintendent Carroll Sawin.

Cinema X owners face tax suit

The owners of the Cinema X Adult Bookstore are being sued for $66,000 in back taxes by the State of Nebraska.

Named as the defendant in the suit is Tara Enterprises, Inc. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

A hearing in the case has been set for July 25 before Lancaster District Court Judge Dale Farnbrugh.

The owners of the theater and bookstore at 921 O, also are facing 295 criminal counts in Lancaster County Court.

Attorney Bogue to leave post

Jeffrey Bogue, 33, 4840 South, will leave his post as senior assistant U.S. attorney in Lincoln Sept. 1.

Bogue, who will be entering private law practice in Denver, has served with the U.S. Justice Department in Nebraska for the past three years.

With Bogue's departure, Richard Nolan, 37, 3010 S. 54th, will take charge of the U.S. Attorney's office in Lincoln.

Cengas Building at 10th and M may be future site for police station relocation on first floor.

Building may be bargain, but some hesitant

The old Cengas Building may be a bargain buy for City Hall, but several councilmen think the whole question of future office space needs further study before any final decisions are made.

Mayor Helen Boosalis said Thursday her administration is exploring the purchase of the old Cengas Building, 10th and M Sts., and relocating the police station on its first floor.

The City Council will be asked Monday to approve a purchase option for the building, formerly occupied by the State Education Department. The purchase price for the two-story building is between $600,000 to $700,000, according to the City Finance Department.

The Cengas structure would be a good solution to the problem of an overcrowded County-City Building, according to the mayor. And moving police operations one block away to the 20,000 square foot, first floor of the Cengas Building would eliminate the need to build a new police station, she said.

But Asst. Police Chief Dean Leitner said an architectural firm studying the building may recommend that it be used on an interim basis. However, Leitner stressed that even though the building might not be used permanently "we're very interested in it."

The city jail would remain in the County-City Building and might be expanded into space vacated by the Police Department, the mayor said.

Several councilmen said Thursday that they could support the option to buy, but only as a measure to buy time for further study of the whole space problem.

"We need to sit down and look at the options . . . at the need for space . . . at how much we are using," said Joe Hampton.

"We're going to wind up with the old Federal Building and we may buy the old Grant Building on O St. for use by senior citizens."

"The real problem is that the building is being offered at bargain basement prices, but it concerns me if government is going to be the only owner downtown," he said.

The county and city need to work together on future space needs, according to Bob Sikyta, who has asked for a meeting on the space issue.

He believes that both the city and county need to consolidate the space they own or lease in scattered areas over Lincoln to the downtown area.

The police department would use the first floor and relocate some offices in Container deposit aim of petition

A petition drive to require a deposit of five cents on all beverage containers sold in Nebraska will begin in September, said the chairman of Nebraskans for Returnable Containers.

Mrs. Pat Jerrison, of Lincoln, said 31,591 signatures are needed to put the issue on the ballot in November, 1978.

Every beverage container sold in the state will be available for deposit refund, if the legislation is approved, Jerrison said.

She said the purpose of the petition is to create an incentive for manufacturers, distributors, dealers and consumers of beverage containers to reuse or recycle the containers, removing the pollution they cause.

Mrs. Jerrison said similar legislation has been enacted in Oregon and Michigan and has enjoyed good results at no cost to the states' taxpayers.

Nebraska Medicaid abortions total 512

Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday there were 512 Medicaid supported welfare abortions performed in Nebraska during 1976.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision has changed previous court rulings allowing any welfare client to receive abortions upon request.

As a result of the latest court ruling, Exon said he has ordered Department of Public Welfare officials to hold public hearings on whether Medicaid funds should be used for non-therapeutic abortions.

Under consideration by state officials is a new policy that would eliminate all taxpayer supported abortions. Exceptions would be made in those cases in which two non-related physicians certified a pregnant woman's life was endangered or where the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.

The Welfare Department would set rules for determining those cases, Exon said.

Under existing law, any woman can have an abortion. But, Exon said, there remains the serious question of whether tax funds should be used for abortions on demand.

"I will not waive the public hearing as I could on this matter since I feel that any individuals or groups opposing or supporting the proposition are entitled to publicly express their views," Exon said.

He noted that a woman receiving welfare payments can receive compensation if she chooses to have the baby. Family planning and birth control services also are available to welfare recipients, he said.

"These would continue under any possible policy change," Exon stated.

Showers cross south areas

A cold front running through southeastern Nebraska Thursday was responsible for thundershowers across much of the south central and southeastern portions of the state.

Osceola in Polk County reported 2.03 inches of rain Thursday night, all of it falling within a 20-minute period. Moderate winds and sharp lightning accompanied the downpour.

Earlier, heavy rain and one-quarter inch hail fell at Valley, located west of Omaha.

A thunderstorm with very heavy rain was also reported near Fullerton.

The storms followed extremely hot weather in eastern Nebraska during the day, up to 101 degrees at both Lincoln and Omaha and Beatrice close behind with 100.

Cooler weather existed in the central and western parts of the state where North Platte and Imperial had highs of only 78 degrees. Alliance's 60 degrees were the low in the state Thursday.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service 30-day outlook for mid-July to mid-August calls for temperatures to average near the seasonal normals across Nebraska. Rainfall is expected to be below normal in the west to slightly above in the east.

Early summer figures show state tourism rise of 10%

Officials of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development report that state tourism is running about 10% higher than a year ago, according to early summer figures.

"Basically, the summer tourism season has gotten off to a good start," said Ron Mertens, director of the department.

He said there has been a 9 to 10% increase in the number of tourists recorded at roadside stops and attractions.

John Rosenow, tourism division director, said contacts with vacation guides were running 20% higher than last year. The guide program has been in effect at roadside rest stops for five years.

"We train the guides to be active salesmen," Rosenow said.

The increase in contacts also stems from the number of years the vacation guide program has been in effect and from cooperation of Nebraska broadcasters along the Interstate 80 route who let motorists know about the program and attractions in their locales.

The officials said that last year's tourism expenditure by visitors to the state and Nebraskans traveling 100 miles or more from home within the state ran an estimated $550 million.

David L. Erickson . . . was city engineer.

Receipts 5.1% below projections

Tax Commissioner William E. Peters said Thursday that fiscal 1976-77 tax receipts ran 5.1% below projections.

"The total actual receipts for fiscal year 1976-77 as reported by the Revenue Department amounted to $506,405,411," Peters said.

"This amount, compared to the projected receipts of $533,393,000, is 5.1% below the projected amount."

Peters said that sales tax receipts were off projections by 9.3% while individual income tax receipts were 2.4% higher than anticipated.

Corporate income tax receipts ran 8.9% below projections and miscellaneous tax receipts were off 10.1% from the anticipated amount.

Ex-official Erickson dead at 86

David L. Erickson, former city engineer, died Thursday. He was 86.

Born in Lincoln, Erickson was a 1911 University of Nebraska graduate. He served in the city engineer's office from 1911 until his retirement in 1964, except for 1917-23, when he was deputy county engineer for Lancaster County.

Erickson's work with the county included supervising the building of county highways.

Erickson was city engineer and director of public works and utilities for the city. He worked in the 1930s and 1950s to increase Lincoln's water supply.

Erickson was a member of the American Water Works Association and was National Director from 1944-47. He was a member of the American Public Works Association and was selected as one of the top 10 public works men in the nation for 1960. Erickson was also a member of the Nebraska Engineering Society and served as president in 1934.

Car-motorcycle mishap leaves 3 hospitalized

Three persons remained hospitalized Thursday night, one in serious condition, with injuries received in a car-motorcycle collision at 25th and O Sts.

Richard M. Hughes, 17, of 5536 Stonelcliffe Drive, was in serious condition at Lincoln General Hospital with what police described as severe neck and shoulder injuries and a broken arm and leg.

Hughes' 23-year-old passenger, Stewart D. Place of 2222 R St., was in fair condition at Lincoln General.

The driver of the car, Molly E. James, 25, of Rt. 2, was treated for cuts and released. Her passenger, Gail D. Ossler, 25, of 7100 Orchard, remained in St. Elizabeth Health Center in fair condition.

State's road program $117 million

By Lynn Zarechling
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's road builders plan to spend $117 million this year building, repaving and repairing 471 miles of highways across the state.

State Roads Director David Coolidge said Thursday the highway construction and improvement program for this year is the largest in the agency's history. The budget exceeds last year's program by $16 million.

The multi-million dollar roads program, covering the period from July 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, will be paid for with $59.5 million in state highway funds, $50.2 million in federal money and $7.3 million in local funds.

Revenues from the state motor vehicle fuel taxes are estimated at 3 1/2% above the amount collected this year, Coolidge said. The Department of Roads also projects a 5% increase in the growth rate for the state sales tax on motor vehicles and a 3% increase in income from motor vehicle registration fees over this year, he said.

The highway construction program was developed by the Roads Department in cooperation with the Nebraska Highway Commission.

A companion five-year road plan, from 1979-84, carries an estimated cost of $442,433,000.

The 1978 road building program earmarks $62.6 million for work on highways, $14.5 million on seconddary roads in the state system, $8.2 million for interstates, $3 million for safety projects and $1.5 million for planning and research studies, junkyard and advertising controls and special landscaping projects.

Coolidge said $27.2 million is earmarked for work on streets and highways administered by cities and counties.

In that category, $5 million will be used for urban roads, $5 million for eliminating road hazards, $10.7 million for secondary roads, $3 million for safety projects, $2 million for state aid and bridge replacement and $1.5 million for miscellaneous work.

The Federal Highway Act authorized $17.9 million for 1978 to build or repair interstate highways in Nebraska. The state is allocating $8.2 million, Coolidge reported.

The money will be used for repairing bridge decks, to acquire land for I-580 in Omaha and to modify highway signs, work on rest areas, signalization and landscaping. The remaining interstate funds will be channeled into the five-year construction program to work on I-580.

Cost estimates for the highway projects are realistic, Coolidge asserted.

"We are concerned about possible increases in the cost of petroleum products, but this may be offset by decreases in the costs of other materials," he said.

He emphasized that bids on projects listed in the 1978 road program will be let, but the work may not be completed during the year. If any work has to be postponed for any reason, Coolidge said, it would be replaced by a project from the five-year road plan.

Major projects in each of the state's seven highway districts and major Interstate work, include:

District I (Lancaster County and southeast Nebraska): grading, structures, surfacing and surface shouldering on five miles of Hwy. 77 south of Lincoln, $3,688,000.

District II (Douglas County): urban work on 9 miles on Hwy. 73 from L to W St. in Omaha, $3,261,000.

District III (Northeast): grading, structures, surfacing and surface shouldering of 7.4 miles on Hwy. 81 north and south of Madison, $2,606,000.

District IV (Central): grading, structures and surfacing of 12.6 miles on Hwy. 92 from Ashton to Hwy. 11, $2,197,000.

District V (Panhandle): urban work on four miles on Hwy. 71 from Scottsbluff to Gering, $2,158,000.

District VI (North Central): urban work on 1.9 miles on Hwy. 30 in Lexington, $3,174,000.

District VII (Southwest): grading, structures, surfacing and surface shouldering on 6.5 miles of Hwy. 34 from Parks to Benkelman, $1,900,000.

Highway 77 to get work south of Lincoln

Motorists driving on Hwy. 77 south of Lincoln will have to slow down for the road builders next year.

But when the work is finished, motorists will be able to drive with ease a few more miles on a four-lane highway.

Eight miles of Hwy. 77 will be widened from two to four lanes as part of the Department of Roads highway construction plan for the 1978 fiscal year.

The highway already is widened from the State Penitentiary South to the Ruskin Place apartment complex. The road will be widened from the apartments to the Hwy. 77 junction with Hwy. 33, commonly called the "Crete Corner."

The work will be done in two phases, a department spokesman said. Three miles of work will cost an estimated $1.77 million, while the remaining five miles carries a $3.68 million pricetag.

Bids on the two projects will be let in June, 1978. Construction work could begin next fall, depending on the progress of other Roads Department projects.

Widening of Hwy. 77 is the only Lincoln project slated for financing during the 1978 budget year. All the other projects in District I, which covers counties in southeastern Nebraska, will total $8.76 million.

The projects include work on 7.8 miles of Hwy. 2 in Otoe County, 27.4 miles of work on Hwy. 8 in Jefferson and Pawnee counties, and five miles of work on Hwy. 15 in Butler County.

Also included in the road plan are 9.4 miles of work on Hwy. 50 in Pawnee, Otoe and Cass counties, 5.5 miles on Hwy. 62 in Richardson County, 12.4 miles of work on Hwy. 64 in Butler County, 3.6 miles on Hwy. 65 in Pawnee County, 9.9 miles on Hwy. 66 in Butler and Saunders County and nine miles on Hwy. 67 in Otoe County.

During the five years from 1979-83, a number of Lancaster County highways are slated to be improved.

The major project includes widening Hwy. 2 in south Lincoln from 14th St. to Old Cheney Rd., for $7.5 million.

West O. St., designated as Hwy. 6, also would be widened and improved from Lincoln west to Emerald. The 4.6 mile stretch of Hwy. 6 from Lincoln to Waverly also would be improved.

During the five years, preliminary engineering work for the seven-mile West Bypass around Lincoln is planned. The bypass would connect with Hwy. 77.

Blackout closes financial markets

New York City financial markets were closed Thursday as a result of the electric blackout which affected most of the city.

Both the New York and American exchanges and commodity exchanges were affected.

Barrow, gilt prices 50¢, $1 higher

Omaha (AP) — Barrows and gilts sold 50 cents to $1 higher at Omaha Thursday on a salable supply of 2,500 head. But the late trade was slow.

Grades of 1-2 weighing 200-230 pounds sold for $48.00 to $48.50, with 1-3 grades weighing 200-240 pounds bringing $48.00 to $48.50.

Those weighing 240-250 pounds brought $47.00 to $48.25, while 250-260 pound weights sold for $46.00 to $47.00.

Grades of 2-3 butchers weighing 260-270 pounds went to $46.00 to $47.00. Sows were 85 cents to $1.25 higher, with 1 to 3 grades weighing 300 to 600 pounds selling for $39.00 to $40.50.

Cattle receipts totaled 300 head. Steers and heifers were firm, but there were not enough for an accurate market test. Cows sold moderately active, 50 cents to $1.00 lower.

There were no sheep offered Thursday.

Soybeans up to daily limits

Chicago (AP) — Soybeans surged to limit advances and grains closed firmly higher in a Chicago Board of Trade session shortened to 1 1/4 hours Thursday by the New York blackout.

Expectations for at least two days of hot, dry weather over much of the Midwest supported the 30-cent-a-bushel soybean gains. Soybean oil closed the 100-point limit higher in all but one contract. Meal was sharply higher, influenced by buying in the bean pit.

Hy-Gain's sales were $20.4 million

Hy-Gain Electronics Corp. sales for its third quarter were $20.4 million, not $2.4 million as stated erroneously in Thursday's Star. A printer's error caused the zero to be dropped.

The firm showed a loss of nearly $5.7 million during the quarter.

Commonwealth Electric gets $9,437,000 OPPD contract

Omaha (AP) — Commonwealth Electric Co. of Lincoln received a $9,437,000 contract Thursday from the Omaha Public Power District for the second phase of the district's Nebraska City Power Station.

OPPD directors also approved three contracts for engineering services.

The Commonwealth Electric contract includes installation, testing and startup of the plant's electrical and instrumentation equipment.

The first phase of electrical installation already is well under way at the 575,000-kilowatt, coal-fired plant which is scheduled for operation in 1979.

The board approved a resolution for engineering services with two firms, Stone and Webster Engineering Corp. of Boston, Mass., and Gilbert-Commonwealth Engineers and Consultants of Reading, Penn. The agreements will enable OPPD to establish a working relationship with both firms, a spokesman said.

The board also authorized two agreements with Stone and Webster for engineering services at the Fort Calhoun nuclear station. The first is for a new security system at the plant, as required by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The engineering project will cost $425,000.

The second agreement with Stone and Webster is in connection with the installation of a new radioactive waste packaging and solidification system at the nuclear unit. The new system will increase radiation protection for operating personnel. The cost of engineering services for installation of the solid waste system will be $222,000.

The board also approved a $118,868 contract with Barry Construction Co. of Lake Wilson, Minn., for installation of approximately 50 miles of underground distribution cable in five locations northeast of Valley.

The board approved adjustments in pension payments for 247 retirees and for eight employees on long-term disability status. Annual cost to the district for increasing the benefits will be $69,361, a spokesman said. There will be an increase of 4.9 per cent for retirees. Those on disability status will receive a 4 per cent increase for each full year they have been on long-term disability.

The board approved third quarter salary increases for 43 salaried exempt employees. The increases average 7 per cent at a total annual cost to the district of $60,646.

Directors approved condemnation proceedings on four parcels of land in Sarpy County. These easements will enable the district to build transmission lines across about 57 acres of land. Negotiations to obtain voluntary easements have not been successful, a spokesman said.

Pioneer Airways tells service plans

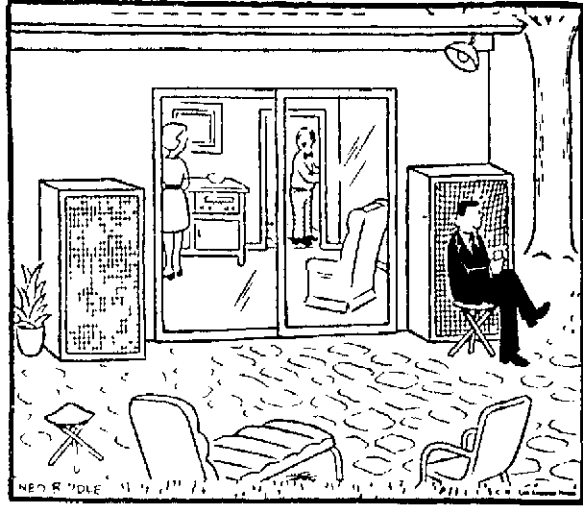

The president of Pioneer Airways says the Denver-based firm will move rapidly to provide service to Lincoln and Omaha since the state Supreme Court has cleared the way.

The court ruled Wednesday that the Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) does not have regulatory authority over commuter air carriers.

John Warren, president of Pioneer, said Thursday the airline had been waiting for its application to provide service to Lincoln and Omaha to be approved by the PSC.

Because of the court ruling, he said, the airline now will be able to proceed immediately with plans to initiate the service.

Third time charm for city golf leader

By Chuck Sinclair
Staff Sports Writer

For a guy who plays golf on the average of once or twice a week, and has played the Country Club of Lincoln only twice in his life, Frank Hilsabeck played it like he owned it in Thursday's round of the Men's city golf tournament.

Sitting one stroke off the pace at the halfway point Wednesday, Hilsabeck posted a one-under-par 71 on the tight, tree-lined Country Club to move into a three-shot lead over second place Craig Moyer who was one-over for the day.

Doug Smith, leader over the first 36 holes of play, slipped to a 76 Thursday, but his 217 total is just three behind Moyer and four off the lead.

"I just hit it straight and kept it out of the trees," said Hilsabeck, who played golf for the University of Nebraska until 1966. "The only real trouble I got into was on No. 7."

"Since I don't play the course very much, I didn't know I should be hitting an iron off the tee and drove it into the trees on the dogleg," he said. "Other than that, I played real well."

Hilsabeck only had one three-putt for the entire round, and that came on the par five 13th hole after he reached the green in two, so he still managed par.

Hilsabeck birdied Nos. 1, 3 and 17 while making bogey on the seventh and 10th.

Not only does Hilsabeck not play much golf in the week because of his family responsibilities, he's never played the men's city tournament before despite living in Lincoln since 1962 when he started at the University after graduating from Holdrege High School.

"I've never had enough vacation time built up to where I figured it would be fair to my family to take a week's vacation to play in the city tournament," said Hilsabeck, who works for Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph. "I've got three weeks this year, so I figured I could take one to play in either the city or the state, and I chose the city."

"I'm thrilled to death to be playing the way I am," he said. "I'm playing a lot better than I ever expected I would. Regardless of what happens tomorrow, I've really enjoyed playing this year and I've enjoyed everyone I've played with."

"I'll be back next year to play again," he added.

Friday the field moves to Hillcrest Country Club for the final round of the 72-hole event.

That figures to be even tougher for Hilsabeck since he hasn't played Hillcrest at all this year and only a handful of times before that.

Seniors leader Larry Rowan will be moving to his home course for the finale after maintaining his lead over the rest of the field with an 80 Thursday and a 230 total.

Dean Bowling is four shots behind Rowan at 234 and defending champion Ed Smith six at 236.

A year ago, Smith's total for the 72-holes bettered not only the seniors scores, but all of those in the field.

Rowan had some putting troubles en route to his 80, but was pleased to remain on top.

"I really didn't putt very well today," he said. "I missed one from 14 inches and another from 18-inches."

Smith says Rowan will putt better on Hillcrest Friday, his home course.

"It's Ed's home course too," Rowan added quickly. "He's in pretty good position."

The seniors will begin teeing off at 8 a.m. with the top four starting at 8:37 a.m., while the open division will follow with the leaders starting around 11:30 a.m.

Lively seeking elusive Cornhusker victory

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Omaha — John Lively isn't really that concerned with how many past Cornhusker Handicaps he's won. What matters is this Saturday's 12th running of the Cornhusker.

"Hey, I don't think I've ever won it before," said the six-time defending Ak-Sar-Ben riding champion. "I don't have any idea of how many races I've won."

Lively's correct. Despite the multitude of honors he's achieved at Ak-Sar-Ben, he's never ridden a Cornhusker Handicap victor.

He'd like to gain that milestone Saturday when he pilots Buddy Larosa in the $100,000-added event over one mile and an eighth. It is the meet's featured attraction for older horses.

Lively has ridden Buddy Larosa to a second-place effort here in the $50,000-added Board of Governors' Handicap here on July 2 over a mile and 1/16th. Lively brought him from off the pace to finish two lengths behind Honest Hombre.

This time, Lively has no strategy planned. "It all depends on what it looks like as the race develops," he said. "I'm sure he'll come from out of it."

"He's been responding real good. Anytime you run a big race (such as the second-place effort), you feel you have a shot to win," Lively said. "The second the other day shows how much quality he has. And he's run over the track. That has to help."

This season, Buddy has two wins, three seconds and three thirds for winnings of $46,918 for owner Charles H. Haft of Cincinnati. His major win was in the $25,000-added Shecky Greene Handicap over 7 furlongs at Arlington Park near Chicago on June 11.

While Lively will be trying his best to win with Buddy Larosa in the Cornhusker, he nevertheless refused to say he tries harder in a major race than in an average weekday event.

"You might take a few more chances in a big race than in a claiming race," he noted. "Possibly, if you're neck and neck towards the finish, you might try harder. But when you're trying to win, you're trying to win."

"There's not much difference. You always want to win regardless of the purse," he said.

Lively has been the prime example of one of the nation's quality riders. This year, however, he's engaged in a tight struggle with Sam Maple, in only his second season at Ak-Sar-Ben, for the title.

Lively modestly praised Maple and realistically knows he can't win the title forever.

"I've won it six times. I know it couldn't be forever," he said. "That's life. Every year, it's more of a big deal to the press and everybody than it is to me. Sam and I get along real well."

I'm having as good as a meet as I've ever had."

Lively will start in the eighth post position in the 12-horse field. He will carry second top-weight of 117 pounds — just one pound behind the top-weighted Private Thoughts with 118 pounds.

Private Thoughts, owned by the Sandra Fram of Troy, Mich., arrived Sunday from Hazel Park in Detroit where he was a top handicap performer.

In Detroit, he has captured the $25,000-added New World Handicap, the $50,000-added Hazel Park Trial Handicap and the $35,000-added Challenge Handicap.

Meanwhile, Sharp Gary, second in last year's Cornhusker to Dragset, may be a factor despite only having one race this season. That was a fifth place effort here in a 6-furlong sprint on July 7.

"He's been a tough competitor. He's never had a day off since he started campaigning before this rest," noted trainer Joseph D'Ettore Jr. "He didn't show much in the Marlboro last year, so we decided to rest him."

"We gave him nine months off and now he's as fit as he's ever been," he said.

Sharp Gary, a 6-year-old, is the top career-earner in the field. He's won 13 races with 6 seconds and 10 thirds in 75 career outings for earnings of $514,575.

Last season, he won the $35,000-added Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame Handicap and the $100,000-added Michigan Mile at Detroit Race Course. He's finished second in the past two Cornhuskers, finishing 1 1/4-lengths behind Dragset last year and just a neck behind Stonewalk in 1975.

He also was beaten by a neck by Destroyer in the 1974 Omaha Gold Cup Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Overall, the 12 horses have combined for 105 wins and earnings of $1,758,178.

Circo seeks second straight State Women's Golf championship

By Virgil Parker
Sports Editor

Omaha — Defending champion Nan Circo goes after a second consecutive Nebraska State Women's Golf title over her home Happy Hollow Country Club layout here Friday.

Circo captured a berth in the finals against North Platte's Val Skinner, whom she met and defeated 2 & 1 in last year's semifinal round, with a comfortable 4 & 3 victory over Cathy Curry of Columbus Thursday.

The same trio of youngsters dominated last month's state medal play tourney. Curry was the winner in that one, while Circo and Skinner tied for second, one stroke back.

Skinner staged a rousing finish to wipe out a one-hole deficit and score a 2 & 1 triumph over the last four holes of her semifinal tussle Thursday against Norfolk's Debbie Benish.

Mrs. Benish, the wife of ex-Nebraska baseball pitcher Randy Benish, was the 'old lady' of the final four in the championship flight at 22 years of age.

Circo, a senior-to-be on Nebraska's women's golf team, got off to a fast start against Curry — an opening rush the Arizona State-bound freshman couldn't overcome.

"I suppose the 33 (a record) I scored on the front nine in my quarterfinal round match Wednesday gave me some added confidence," Circo admitted. "I won the first two holes, the first with a par and the second with a birdie, and that got me going."

Circo's birdie on the 332-yard second hole came on a driver and eight-iron to within five feet. She also birdied No. 6, a 343-yard hole, with a driver, six-iron and another five-foot putt.

Circo also won the fifth and ninth holes with pars to take a commanding five-up lead at the turn.

Curry birdied the long (433 yards) 12th hole with two booming woods to the green. That cut the deficit to four.

"I was getting concerned about my driver," Circo admitted. I got in trouble on both Nos. 13 and 14, but managed to get up and down from off the green to save par. I knew she was trying to stage a comeback, but I figured if I didn't choke, the holes would run out."

The two halved three holes after Curry's only win to end the match.

"I was in the trees and couldn't sink a putt. That was the story of the front side," Curry commented. "I won on my home course. Now she's won on hers. Next year (the women's state will be in Fremont), maybe we'll meet on a neutral course."

The Skinner-Benish match was a seesaw affair. Like Circo, Skinner, a senior-to-be at North Platte High School, was two-up after two.

"I birdied No. 1 and No. 4," she recalled. "but inbetween had a double bogey on No. 3 and three-putted the eighth and ninth holes. I was lucky to still be oneup at the turn."

Skinner lost the advantage with poor play on Nos. 12 and 13. Benish was one-up.

At that stage, Skinner gave herself a pep talk. "After No. 13, I said to myself, 'Well, Val, you're nearing the end. It's now or never, baby.' And I stepped up and gave it all I had."

Skinner won the next two holes with pars. The 15th was the key. The North Platte youngster sank a curving 12-footer to get up and down from the sand. That gave her a one-up lead.

She could have made the match dormie at No. 16, reaching the edge of the green in two. But, she stubbed the little chip and then three-putted for a six. Benish missed her chance to even the match by also needing three taps on the green.

Benish, whose first real claim to fame in golf came six years ago when as Debbie Reed she sued the Nebraska School Activities Association for the right to play on the Norfolk High School boys golf team, said Skinner's putt on No. 15 was the deciding factor.

"I left my putt right on the edge of the cup on that hole, then she made hers," Debbie recalled. "That about did it. I thought I had it going after winning the 12th and 13th holes, but I had a bad drive and then shanked a shot. We each opened the door for the other several times today. Val just took more advantage of her opportunities than I did."

Foster, Seaver belt Braves

United Press International

George Foster hit three home runs and pitcher Tom Seaver added a fourth Thursday night when the Cincinnati Reds rolled to a 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves behind the two-hit pitching of the three-time Cy Young Award winner.

Seaver had a no-hitter until Willie Montanez doubled with one out in the seventh. Rowland Office led off the ninth with another double and scored the Braves' run on an error. Seaver notched his 10th triumph against five losses.

Foster's three homers gave him 28 this year and the five RBI boosted his league-leading total to 88.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead off loser Dick Ruthven in the second when Dan Driessen doubled and scored on Mike Lum's single. Foster's first homer made it 2-0 in the fourth.

Seaver led off the fifth with his seventh career homer and two outs later, after walks to Joe Morgan and Driessen, Foster followed with his second homer of the game. The Reds' slugger added his third homer leading off the bottom of the eighth.

In other games, Houston edged Los Angeles 4-3, St. Louis shaded Philadelphia 7-6 in 11 innings and Chicago's suspended and regularly-scheduled game at New York were both postponed.

Jose Cruz drilled an RBI double and Joe Ferguson followed with a run-scoring single with two out in the eighth to rally the Astros over the Dodgers despite two homers by Dodgers' right-fielder Reggie Smith, who was returning to the lineup after a six-day rest because of nagging injuries.

Pinch-hitter Hector Cruz doubled in the go-ahead run and scored the eventual winning run in the 11th to give the Cardinals a victory over the Phillies.

Phillies' Bake McBride does the limbo to avoid a throw by Cardinals' Ken Reitz.

Marti leads tourney, Nicklaus, Watson tied

Sutton, Mass. (AP) — The Jack Nicklaus-Tom Watson duel continued while veteran Fred Marti, hitting his approach with uncanny accuracy off the bluegrass fairways, cut out a record 64 and established a three-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Watson and Nicklaus, who fought each other in one of golf's great confrontations last week in the British Open matched three under-par 68s in the hot, sunny weather.

"Fantastic. I was hitting the ball so close to the hole it was unbelievable," said the rangy Marti, who scored eight birdies and made only one putt longer than five feet.

Marti, who has yet to win in 14 years of tour activity, reeled off one string of five consecutive birdies and set two tournament scoring records, his seven under-par total for the 7,191-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course and a six under-par 29 on the back nine.

White helps Royals to win

Kansas City (AP) — Frank White, on the hottest hitting streak of his career, singled and tripled, driving in three runs Thursday night to lead the Kansas City Royals past the Detroit Tigers 4-3.

White's RBI triple over Ben Oglivie's head in right field in the sixth inning marked the fifth consecutive game in which he has driven in a run.

Jim Colborn, 11-9, surrendered eight hits and both runs before he was relieved by Larry Gura, who notched his seventh save.

In other games, Boston bounced Cleveland 7-4, Baltimore drubbed Texas 6-1 and Kansas City nipped Detroit 4-3.

Jason Thompson gave loser Bob Sykes, 1-3, a 1-0 lead in the second with a solo home run, his 17th of the season. The Royals came back on White's ground ball to score Joe Zdeb in the second, knotting the score.

White singled home Darrell Porter in the fourth and George Brett followed with a sacrifice fly to make it 3-2.

Steve Kemp singled home Ron LeFlore with the Tigers' second run in the fifth and LeFlore finished the scoring in the ninth with his ninth home run.

The victory was the Royals eighth in their last 10 games.

The Royals wasted several early scoring opportunities, leaving five men on base in the first three innings.

McRae's single and Tom Verzyer's error on Arnes Otis' ground ball put runners at first and second with one out in the first. But Al Cowens fled out and John Mayberry grounded to second base.

George Brett, who broke an 0-for-13 slump with a single Wednesday night, grounded out to end the second inning and leave runners at first and third.

McRae led off the third with his 28th double, tying him with Reggie Jackson for the league lead. Otis drew a walk behind him, but Cowens grounded into a double play and Mayberry fled out to strand McRae at third.

Carl Yastrzemski and Butch Hobson triggered a pair of three-run innings with solo homers as the Red Sox lashed 12 hits enroute to a victory over the Indians. Yastrzemski passed Ted Williams as the all-time Boston hit leader when he upped his career hits to 2,655 with a fifth-inning single.

Eddie Murray's line drive single to left field, which skipped past Claudell Washington all the way to the wall, opened the way for a three-run seventh inning and sent the Orioles past the Rangers. Ross Grimsley's fifth victory in his last six decisions enabled Baltimore to stay within a halfgame of division-leading Boston.

Sports Digest

Football

Coach Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers said Thursday excessive violence in the National Football League could ruin the game.

"One of the things I'm concerned about is what would result from a lack of respect for the rules," Noll said as he testified for a second day in George Atkinson's $2 million slander suit.

Other football

George Allen, coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins, signed a contract Thursday for a four-year extension of his current seven-year pact, which expires after the 1977 season, with a substantial increase in salary.

Wide receiver Howard Twilley, last of the original Miami Dolphins, gave in to an injured knee Thursday and was placed on waivers, partly at his own suggestion.

Basketball

The New Orleans Superdome will be the site of the 1982 National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball finals, NCAA officials announced Thursday.

Market Square Associates, the group that operates the 17,000-seat Market Square Arena, has committed a substantial portion of $800,000 in new capital to the Indiana Pacers and will become a limited partner in the NBA team, it was announced Thursday.

Baseball

Associated Press has reported that NBC-TV is concerned about the Chicago Cubs winning the Eastern Division of the National League.

The network, which will televise the Major League playoffs, has scheduled its telecast for night where the potential is greater for an audience. Wrigley Field in Chicago, however, has no lights and any games there would have to be in the daytime. It was rumored that if the Cubs win, the network will ask the team to play at a different site.

Seattle Mariners manager Darrell Johnson says he levied the largest fine of his career against pitcher Stan Thomas, who threw at Minnesota Twin Mike Cuddage in an American League game Sunday.

Outfielder Elliott Maddox, who has been undergoing therapy since March following his second knee operation, was reinstated Thursday to the active roster of the Baltimore Orioles.

St. Louis Cardinals manager Vern Rapp and relief pitcher Clay Carroll have been fined an undisclosed amount of cash by National League president Charles S. Feeney for remarks the two made about umpire Bruce Froemming.

Randy Jones probably can pitch again in three to eight weeks, the San Diego Padres' team physician said, after Jones underwent a series of tests on the injured arm.

The Kansas City Royals recalled outfielder Joe Lahoud from Omaha and said infielder Dave Nelson would be placed on the 15-day disabled list. In 83 games with the Omaha Royals Lahoud hit .321 with 19 home runs and 69 runs batted in. He will be in uniform for the weekend series between Kansas City and New York's Yankees.

Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher John Candelaria will be examined Friday to determine the extent of a back injury he suffered Wednesday night in a game with the Montreal Expos, when he slipped on the wet mound.

Other sports

The United States continued its medal surge at the Maccabiah Games Thursday, taking three of five races in swimming and winning in weightlifting, shooting and gymnastics.

Omaha wins 7th straight

Omaha (AP) — Rich Gale held Iowa to three singles as Omaha took a 2-0 decision in an American Association baseball game shortened by rain to eight innings Thursday night. It was the seventh straight victory for the Royals. Gale, called up from Jacksonville at midseason, got his second victory against two losses. Omaha scored its runs on bases-loaded walks in the fourth and seventh innings. Three Oaks pitchers held Omaha to four hits but gave up 12 walks.

Gerry's split doubleheader

Lincoln Gerry's split a Junior Legion doubleheader with Omaha Sokals Thursday night at Sherman Field. Gerry's won the first game 3-2 and fell 11-0 in the nightcap. Scott Carlson drove in two runs in the first inning of the opener and Doug Diehm drove in the eventual winning run in the third. Doug Simpson had two hits and scored two runs for Gerry's. In the nightcap, Sokals' pitcher Tom Brazeal allowed just one hit, a single by Bob Bousek, in the contest shortened to five innings by the 10-run rule. Brazeal struck out seven and walked two and Sokals scored eight runs in the third inning to take a commanding lead.

Chiefs sign KU grad

Kansas City (AP) — Waddell Smith, a football and track star at the University of Kansas, signed a series of one-year pro football contracts Thursday with the Kansas City Chiefs. Terms of the pact with the National Football League club were not announced. Smith, 6 feet 1 and 175 pounds, was the Chiefs' second selection in the eighth round of the recent college draft. Chiefs Coach Paul Wiggin said Smith, the Jayhawks' leading receiver the past two years, will be tried both at wide receiver and on the punt and kickoff return units. Wiggin said Smith's pass-catching credentials were modest since Kansas employed a wishbone offense, but he was impressed with Smith's downfield speed. Smith is a Kansas record-holder for the 400 meters (45.3 seconds) and the 440 (46.8). A native of New Orleans, La., Smith played high school football in Los Angeles and one year of junior college ball in California before transferring to Kansas.

Great Plains meet 3-day affair

By Ken Hambleton
Staff Sports Writer

Just because there are 200 or so less competitors in this year's 15th annual Great Plains Senior and Age Group, A&B Swimming and Diving meet doesn't mean Woods Park Pool won't be filled to the brim with competitors.

Lincoln Swim Club business manager Pat Mulligan, now in his seventh year with the club and the Great Plains indoor and outdoor meets, said that this year's meet will be a bit more comfortable.

"We have 409 swimmers and divers entered, representing 23 teams, compared with 600-plus entries last year," said Mulligan. This year the Kansas meets scheduled for the same time will be held and therefore we won't have the extra swimmers we had last year.

"But we will still have the quality competition we've had in the past years," he said.

All-Americans included in the competition, starting at 2 p.m. Friday, 8:30 a.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday, are Chuck Sharpe, who will be attending Indiana this fall; Jay Merritt of Lincoln Southeast; Rick Rhodes of Omaha Westside; Barb Harris of Lincoln High and Julie Day of Bellevue.

The diving, which begins at 9:30 a.m. each of the three days, includes Lincoln Swim Club members Bobby Wood, Michaela Milana, Cathy Young, Scott Heinrich and Scott Harris all of whom have qualified for the National AAU meet later this month.

Other top swimmers entered in the meet include Kris Funk of Lincoln, JoDea Ekstrum of Marshall, Minn., one of Nebraska's top recruits this year; Melanie Jakub of Nebraska; Mark Hammer and Larry Summers of Lincoln.

Dave Killen will be setting his sights on retiring the Lambert Trophy for the 200-meter freestyle race which is open to Lincoln swimmers only. Killen has won the event the last two years, and according to the rules of the event, can retire the trophy with a third straight victory.

Doug Wilmes a former Lincolnite attending Alabama, hopes to defend his title in the 50-yard freestyle Charko Trophy race, against Sharpe, Merritt and young Lincolnite Bob Gustafson.

Jim Weybrauch, formerly of Southeast, now attending Southern Methodist and his brother Tom of Arizona State, are expected to lead the open division in the diving, which is also the Midwestern AAU championships in conjunction with the Great Plains meet.

Swimmers will compete in 120 events and divers in 28 events during the three-day meet at the 33rd and J Street pool.

Junior Open tennis meet slated

A field of more than 160 players will compete this weekend in the annual Lincoln Junior Open Tennis Tournament which gets underway Friday at the Woods tennis courts and the University of Nebraska.

"This is the only open junior tennis tournament we will have in Lincoln this summer," tournament director George Eisele said. "We think we have a very strong field."

In addition to Nebraska, competitors from Kansas, Missouri and Iowa will enter the meet which will crown boy and girl champions in four classes. The groups will include 12-and-under, 14-and-under, 16-and-under and 18-and-under.

Headlining the event will be Omaha's Bob Green. A two-time Nebraska prep champion, Green is the top seed in the boys 18-year-old division.

The 14 and 16-year-old classes will open action Friday afternoon with the 12 and 16-year-olds getting underway Saturday. Finals in all age groups will be held Sunday afternoon at the Woods Courts.

Lincoln's Craig Johnson, who finished second in the Omaha Open Tournament in June in the 14-year-old division, has moved up to the 16-year-old class and has drawn the No. 5 seed.

Other Lincoln players who are seeded include: Van Yentler, No. 5 in boys 12-and-under; Charlie Capek, No. 4 in boys 14-and-under; Jim Carson, No. 5 in boys

14-and-under; Russ Seamon, No. 7 in boys 16-and-under; Mark Neumeister, No. 2 in boys 18-and-under and Bob Mulvaney, No. 4 in boys 18-and-under.

Leslie Hinrichs, seeded No. 2 in the girls 14-and-under is the only Lincoln girl to draw a seed.

The top seeds in each age group include: Todd Kros, 12-and-under boys, St. Louis, Mo.; Rich Prochaska, 14-and-under boys, Omaha; Peter Conant, 16-and-under boys, Omaha; Bob Green, 18-and-under boys, Omaha; Nancy Rath, 12-and-under girls, Omaha; Stacey Swanson, 14-and-under girls, Grand Island; Ann Swanson, 16-and-under girls, Grand Island; Diane Myer, 18-and-under girls, Omaha.

Cards ink Pisarkiewicz

St. Louis (AP) — Steve Pisarkiewicz, record-setting quarterback for the University of Missouri, signed a series of one-year contracts Thursday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Pisarkiewicz was the Cardinals' No. 1 pick in the National Football League draft in May. He also was the first quarterback selected in the draft.

At an afternoon press conference, Pisarkiewicz made it clear he expects to move up slowly through the ranks.

"No two ways about it," he said. "Jim Hart (the Cardinals' veteran quarterback) is the teacher."

"Hart doesn't have to tell you things—you just have to watch him. He does the right thing 99 times out of 100," Pisarkiewicz said. "I'm going to take my time and learn the system. It's going to be a lot more complex than college ball."

But Coach Don Coryell said he is anxious to watch "Zark" work.

"We don't believe in bringing rookies around slowly," Coryell said. "We have great hopes for Steve. If he can play, he'll get his chance to show us right away."

Neither Pisarkiewicz nor the Cards would make public terms of the agreement.

The 24-year-old Pisarkiewicz became Missouri's quarterback in the last half of the 1974 season after coming off the bench in the third quarter to spark the Tigers to a three-touchdown final period and a 21-10 victory over Nebraska.

As a junior Pisarkiewicz set a school record against Oklahoma State by completing 20 of 27 passes for 371 yards.

Rain postpones state tourney

Stromsburg — Thursday night's game between Shelby and Lincoln Dirt Cheap in the State Semipro Baseball tournament was rained out with Shelby leading 9-4 in the fifth inning.

That game will be resumed at 6 p.m. Friday and Thursday's other scheduled contest between Beatrice and North Bend will follow at 6:30. The Beatrice Bruins will meet Lincoln First Savings in Friday's 8:30 p.m. nightcap.

City green fee hike proposed

Increases in golf fees at city golf courses were recommended Thursday by the City Parks and Recreation Board.

Under the proposal the greens fee for 18 holes would go up from $4.50 to $5.00, from $3 to $3.50 for 9 holes and from $2.75 to $3.25 for junior golfers.

In addition membership costs will be increased and an additional 50-cent temporary surcharge levied for each round of golf played by golfers with memberships.

The increased fees will go into effect next year. They are being raised to meet the increased cost of operating the golf courses. Under the proposed budget for golf courses submitted for the next fiscal year the cost is pegged at $450,000.

Col. Sanders, Waverly split

Colonel Sanders and Waverly-Stan's each split a pair of games Thursday night in the Al Hawthorne Slow Pitch League at Elks Field. Three of the four games were decided by a single run.

Waverly-Stan's defeated Ball Real Estate 11-8 in the first game. Oly Gold nipped Colonel Sanders 6-5. Colonel Sanders edged Waverly-Stan's 17-16 and Sam's nudged Ace TV 8-7 in the nightcap.

John Brown hit two home runs in the Colonel Sanders win.

In Oly Gold's extra-inning win, Oly Gold scored three runs in the top of the eighth and a Colonel Sanders rally in the bottom of the inning came up one run short.
